Paris Rioters Attack Laniel, Defense Chief

Mob, Denouncing EDC, Breaks Police Lines; Seven Under Arrest

PARIS, April 4 (AP)—A yelling mob, screaming hatred of the European army, today kicked the shins of Premier Joseph Laniel and slapped the face and pulled the hair of Defense Minister Rene Pleven.

The rioters burst police lines to attack France's top political figures during a solemn ceremony honoring the heroes of Dien Bien Phu at the country's most sacred spot—the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomph. Stones were also hurled but hit no one.

Seven Arrested

Police said it was the first time in the modern era anyone had succeeded in making a physical attack on a French premier or Cabinet minister under such circumstances.

They arrested seven of the 100 demonstrators. Most of the crowd were identified as supporters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle or Monarchists, but police said it was possible some Communists had infiltrated.

Even as the riot was being brought under control, some demonstrators tried to overturn Premier Laniel's car as he drove away.

1,000 Attend Rally

Laniel, Pleven and a hushed throng of about 1,000 persons had gathered around the Arch of Triomph for services honoring the defenders of Dien Bien Phu, the Communist-beleaguered fortress in Indochina. The rally was sponsored by the Assn. of Former Combatants in Indochina.

So far as could be determined, there was no connection between the reason for the rally and the violent outburst by persons opposing possible French ratification of the American-backed European army treaty.

Red Police Kill Allied Soldier During 'Attack'

TOKYO, Monday, April 5 (AP)—Peiping radio said today that Korean-Chinese civil police killed one Allied soldier and captured another Saturday night near Panmunjom, Korea.

Presumably the Allied soldiers were South Koreans.

The broadcast said the two were part of a five-man armed unit which crossed the military demarcation line over to the Communist side and started an "armed attack" on the civil police at 8:45 p.m.

"Firing from their carbines could be clearly heard at the headquarters of the Military Armistice Commission," Peiping said.

"This incident constitutes a serious violation of the Korean armistice.

"One of the men who crossed the military demarcation line was killed by the civil police while another was captured. The rest fled back to the south.

"The Korean-Chinese side seized two carbines.

"The captured man, Kim Chong Kum, admitted that there were altogether five men belonging to the unit taking part in the attack."

Peiping said Allied and Communist observer teams decided to conduct an on-the-spot investigation Sunday at a point near Majangni about two miles east of Panmunjom.

Lawford, Miss Kennedy Will Marry April 24

BOSTON, April 4 (AP)—Miss Patricia Kennedy, daughter of former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, will become the bride of film actor Peter Lawford on April in New York City, a Kennedy family spokesman said tonight.

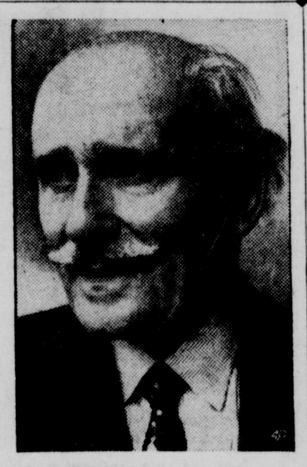

The simple 4 p.m. ceremony will be at the Catholic Church of St. Thomas More. Officiating will be the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, former president of Notre Dame University. A reception will follow at the Plaza Hotel.

The guest list will be confined to members of the families and close friends of the bride and groom.

Demos Urge Ike Spell Out H-Bomb Defense

President Goes On Air Tonight

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Democrats called on President Eihower today to spell out in his radio-television report to the nation tomorrow night how the United States proposes to meet the threat of hydrogen bomb attacks on America.

Republicans generally applauded the President's decision to speak out to the people about their fears, domestic and international.

Eisenhower will speak from 8:30 to 9 p.m. EST on NBC, CBS and ABC television networks, with Dumont probably joining. The NBC, ABC and Mutual radio networks will carry the speech at the same time, and CBS from 10:30 to 11 p.m.

H-Bomb "Neutralized"

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) said he hopes the President will make clear the course this country will take in a situation where Jackson said the H-bomb has become more or less "neutralized" because it belongs to Russia as well as to the United States.

"It seems to me that a new statement of foreign and military policy is necessary to correct the blunder that was made when it was announced that our defense would be based primarily on atomic retaliation," Jackson said.

"I think it is becoming more apparent every day that such weapons are becoming neutralized because of their awesome destruction power and may never be used by either side." He added:

Smathers Fears "New Look"

"Are we going to put all of our defense eggs in that basket at the expense of building up conventional weapons, the kind that must be used to stop aggression short of atomic and hydrogen arms?"

Sen. Smathers (D-Fla) said he fears the "new look" military policy which the President has defended vigorously threatens "liquidation" of the armed forces reserves.

Secretary of State Dulles has said that the policy of "massive retaliation" relies more heavily on air power and new weapons than on attempts to match ground forces with the Russians and their satellites.

President, Dulles Hail NATO On Its 5th Anniversary

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "symbolizes the unity of free men in an age of peril," and Secretary of State Dulles expressed confidence that Russia will fail in efforts to disrupt it.

Both spoke out—Eisenhower in a statement and Dulles in a (CBS) radio broadcast—on the fifth anniversary of the alliance.

Dulles said Russia is "trying very hard" to break up the alliance "not because the Soviet Union wants really to protect the freedom and wellbeing of Western Europe, but wants to undermine it."

Maneuvers "Seen Through"

"I believe these maneuvers are seen through and I am confident that they will fail," he said.

Eisenhower, who organized and first headed the integrated European defense forced created by NATO, said in a statement:

"Five years ago today, the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty launched a unique working partnership among the Atlantic peoples. Their alliance for the preservation of peace and mutual defense against communistic aggression is now a mighty bulwark of the free world.

Symbol Of Free Men

"NATO symbolizes the unity of free men in an age of peril. Fourteen nations, diverse in language and economy and custom and political structure, are joined within it because each nation is determined to sustain its own independence. Dedicated to a common purpose, their strength is multiplied, their inexhaustible energies are pooled.

Dulles said the fact that Germany has not yet been permitted "to contribute to the collective defense system" under the proposed European Defense Community is an outstanding example of the way in which old European rivalries and suspicions have hampered cooperation among the free nations.

Housewife Beats Husband To Death, Attempts Suicide

MONTAGUE, N. J., April 4 (AP)—State police said a pretty, brunette housewife, fearing her husband was having an affair with another woman, beat him to death as he slept today and then tried to commit suicide.

Russell Owens, 32, was dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital in nearby Port Jervis, N. J., his head crushed by the butt of a shotgun wielded with such force it broke in two.

His wife, Jean, 25, mother of a baby girl who was five months old today, was hospitalized in good condition with deep gashes in her wrists, said by police to have been self-inflicted with a razor blade.

State police said a note in Mrs. Owens' handwriting said she was afraid she had lost her husband's love to another woman and indicated she planned to do away with him, their baby and herself.

The baby, Beverly Dorine, was unharmed.

Toscanini, World-Famous Conductor, Retires At 87

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—Arturo Toscanini's retirement was announced tonight, after an NBC Symphony Orchestra concert which not even his musicians knew was his last.

Following the concert, Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the network and the Radio Corp. of America, announced the world famed conductor's retirement.

The radio concert, an hour and 15 minutes long and all Wagnerian, marked the end of the regular winter season for the NBC orchestra. But listeners were given no inkling that they were hearing the 87-year-old conductor's last performance.

An NBC spokesman said Toscanini, always shy of publicity, had insisted on the utmost secrecy about his retirement until after the performance.

The spokesman said no move had been made to find a successor to Toscanini.

Sarnoff released copies of a letter from the maestro which said that, "Now the sad time has come when I must reluctantly lay aside my baton and say goodbye to my orchestra."

Toscanini's letter, written on his birthday March 25, said he would carry with him "rich memories of these years of music making."

It gave no details of his reasons for deciding to leave the orchestra.

Sarnoff's letter in reply said:

"I realize that after more than 65 years of absolute dedication to the art of music you have fully earned the right to lay down your baton.

"Yet I am saddened, along with millions of people in America, indeed all over the civilized world, at the thought that we shall no longer be privileged to look forward to your broadcasts and concerts which for so many years enobled our lives.

"That you have made your decision at a time that finds you at the very height of your artistic powers only adds poignancy to our deprivation."

Albanians On Trial

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Communist Albania announced the opening of a show trial tomorrow of eight Albanians accused of plotting with Americans to overthrow the regime of Premier Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha.

Losses Force Red Pullback In Indochina

Vietminh Withdraws Slightly From Fort As Attacks Halted

HANOI, Indochina, April 4 (AP)—Stung by their heavy losses, the Communist-let Vietminh forces began pulling back slightly from the Dien Bien Phu barricades tonight and a French spokesman said it was doubtful if they would be able to mount another heavy assault within the next 12 hours.

The pullback was from the eastern and southeastern defenses of the dustbowl fort 175 miles west of Hanoi.

A French High Command spokesman emphasized, however, that the withdrawal was only about 400 or 500 yards and that it was "too early" to say that it constituted a retreat in force.

The spokesman said the withdrawal was not a definite indication that the Vietminh intended to abandon its attacks in those sectors. It could be that the enemy was merely regrouping for fresh mass assaults, he added.

Rebel Losses Heavy

Since the Communist-led rebels started their all-out attack March 13, authoritative estimates said they have lost 21,000 in killed and wounded, or about half the attacking force.

But the French were still outnumbered.

The defenders earlier today turned back fresh waves trying to overrun the northwestern defenses where the enemy had advanced to within a mile of the core of the valley.

The French also counterattacked time after time.

Vietminh attackers, moving up behind a curtain of rebel artillery fire tried to smash through the barbed wire barriers only to be cut to ribbons by the fortress' American-supplied guns.

Bitter Artillery Duels

The roar of big guns echoed across the dusty, hill-circled plain as French and Vietminh artillery waged bitter duels attempting to knock out each other's firing positions.

The rebels concentrated on trying to strengthen their footholds in the northwest and southeast, where they hold ground barely a mile from the bastion's core.

But they struck also at the southwest defenses. The French said they pushed back the first rebel attempt at a breakthrough there, inflicting "heavy losses." At one point the French counted 200 Vietminh dead, their bodies dangling like scarecrows in the barbed wire defenses which still held firm.

Slaying Of Navy Wife Is Probed

LEXINGTON PARK, Md., April 4 (AP) — A 31-year-old Navy petty officer was sought today for questioning about the slaying of a young Navy wife who was beaten to death with a hammer while her husband was on duty at the nearby Patuxent Naval Air Station.

Police said the victim, 22-year-old Mrs. Iona Josephine Davis, was found dead by her husband, Seaman James Edward Davis, when he returned home about 10 a.m. yesterday.

Dr. Julian S. Lane, deputy county medical examiner, placed the time of death at about 8:30 a.m. and said the small brunette had died of a compound fracture of the skull caused by a hammer found near the body. He said there had also been an attempt at strangulation but the blows on the head caused death.

Police quoted Davis as saying he found his wife on the floor and ran outside. A neighbor, Chief Yeoman Frank Boudrou went into the apartment with the distraught husband, examined the body, then called police.

State Police quoted a neighbor as having seen a man leave the apartment earlier.

Death Penalty Urged For Peacetime Spying

WASHINGTON, Arpil 4 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell today recommended that the death penalty be provided for peacetime espionage.

In an annual report to Congress he pointed out that under existing law espionage in wartime carries the death penalty while in peacetime the maximum possible punishment is 20 years imprisonment.

Survivors Of Tragic Fire

Lawrence Richards, 29-year-old coal miner, and his 2-year-old son, Charles, were the only survivors of a fire that destroyed their home at Glouster, Ohio, killing the 25-year-old Mrs. Richards and five other children ranging in age from 9 months to 8 years.

Republicans See Defeat Of Demo Tax-Slash Drive

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Republican Senate leaders were reported increasingly confident today they can turn back a Democratic drive to raise income tax exemptions for all taxpayers and their dependents, thus cutting their tax bills.

At the same time, Senate Democratic sources said they thought their chances of success now are no better than 50-50. A short while ago they had high hopes of winning.

Senators on both sides of the issue were wary about commenting publicly, largely because they agree that a sharp change in economic conditions in the next two months could upset all their present calculations.

Hearings Open Tuesday

Democrats still think they will win handily in the Senate if unemployment continues to climb into the summer months.

The fight over the income tax reduction will come on a big tax revision bill, on which the Senate Finance Committee opens three weeks of public hearings Tuesday.

Chairman Millikin (R-Colo) hopes to get the measure up for floor debate in May, but some Democratic leaders say June is more likely.

One GOP senator told a reporter he did not know of any votes his side will lose for certain on the income tax cut except Sen. Langer (R-ND), who has announced he is for boosting exemptions.

Byrd To Oppose Reduction

This source said he was sure several Southern Democrats would oppose the tax reduction. Sen. Byrd (D-Va) has said he will be against it, and some other Southerners are understood to be ready to join him.

On the other hand, Sen. George (D-Ga), the dean of the Senate, is spearheading the move to raise the exemptions, and Democrats favoring an income tax cut are banking heavily on his leadership. George was chairman of the Finance Committee for 10 years.

Enthusiastic Audience Hears Sen. McCarthy

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) told a highly enthusiastic audience today he would continue to battle communism at home and abroad.

McCarthy addressed more than six thousand guests including Francis Cardinal Spellman at the Communion breakfast of the Police Department's Holy Name Society. His half-hour speech was frequently interrupted by lengthy applause, and as he neared the end of the talk, spectators shouted "Keep going," "You're only warming up" and "Keep giving it to them."

The senator afterward was practically carried from the ballroom of the Hotel Astor as police bodyguards around him fought past the throng that sought to shake his hand.

Probers Won't Retain Sears If Army Objects

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP) — Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said tonight that the Senate Investigations subcommittee will not keep Samuel P. Sears as counsel during its probe of the Army fight with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) if the Army objects.

Sears, a Boston lawyer, will be questioned by subcommittee members tomorrow about statements attributed to him in 1952 as hailing McCarthy's re-election and praising the Wisconsin senator for "a great job" in driving Communists out of government.

These statements came to light after Sears was appointed last Thursday. He told a news conference, in answer to a question, that he had never taken a stand publicly or privately on McCarthy or "McCarthyism."

Stevens May Make Decision

Mundt said he presumed Secretary of the Army Stevens would make the decision on whether there was any objection to Sears serving.

In talking to reporters after being interviewed on NBC's TV show "Meet the Press," Mundt also said the Defense Department had opened a "Pandora's box" in appointing its own counsel and raising the question of whether the counsel would be permitted to cross-examine witnesses at the hearing. The same rules should apply to both sides, he said.

Upset By Welch Appointment

Mundt, who will serve as chairman of the subcommittee while McCarthy steps aside during the inquiry, said he had almost persuaded the Wisconsin senator to give up his own rights to cross-examine.

This, Mundt said, was upset by the appointment of Joseph N. Welch, 63, another Boston attorney, as the Army counsel. The only way McCarthy could be prevented from maintaining his right to cross-examine, if he insisted, Mundt said, would be for the Senate itself to overrule him.

Britons Hopeful Churchill Eases H-Bomb Tension

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Britons turned to Winston Churchill tonight with an anxiety felt only in war years. They were hopeful his vast personal prestige can bring an understanding among the big powers on the hydrogen bomb and disarmament generally.

Even some leftwing critics of the prime minister privately felt he alone could ease the tension which followed the latest American H-bomb tests in the Pacific.

Churchill worked all day at Chartwell, his country residence, on the speech he will deliver in the House of Commons tomorrow in debate on the H-bomb. The speech was expected to be directed at the Americans and Russians as much as to quiet fears at home.

He has received American aid and cooperation in preparing his stand. Informants in Washington said he had been given information on the H-bomb tests permissible under restrictions of the Atomic Energy Act.

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., April 4 (AP)—A $250,000 fire burned through the center of this eastern Ontario town shortly after noon today leaving 26 persons homeless and razing 10 stores. One person was injured.

Jazz Band Eludes German Reds To Escape To West

BERLIN, April 4 (AP)—The leader of an East German fugitive jazz band said today he fled the Soviet zone with his 17 musicians and girl vocalist because Communist youth gangs had been ordered to break up his concerts.

Bandleader Karl Walter, 46, said his home in Chemnitz was under police observation Friday when the swing aggregation made its mass exodus to Allied West Berlin.

The musicians, ordered by the Communists to disband for playing "provocative American jazz", evaded secret police by traveling the 110 miles by train, singly and in small groups.

"Some friends waarned me on Thursday we were in danger," Walter related. "The orchestra already had made an agreement to go to the West if things got too hot."

"My main worry now is that we can stick together in one (refugee) camp so we can rehearse," Walter said.

Members of the band, lodged in a refugee center here, whipped up an impromptu jam session during the day, then strolled the streets of West Berlin. They only bemoaned the fact that it was Sunday and the music stores were closed.

Walter said boogie woogie music and Stan Kenton style arrangements kept him in hot water with the Communists for more than three years. He added the music had "great appeal" for German youth.

A first break came from the U. S. High Commission Station RIAS (Radio in Allied Sector) which said it would put the band on the air in their first free world booking before the group is flown to Western Germany.

Withdrawal From Calif. Race Urged

Chairman Mitchell Also Refuses Party Backing To Condon

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell today denied the Democratic party's support to James Roosevelt and suggested that he get out of the race for a California congressional seat.

Mitchell also withheld the national party's backing from Rep. Robert L. Condon, a first term member seeking re-election in the face of charges—which he has denied—that he is a security risk.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was accused of misconduct in a separate maintenance suit brought by his wife, Romelle. But he has said he would go ahead with his political race as "the answer to whatever 'smears the opposition might ever raise against me."

Mitchell said he believes "that most Democrats would feel that candidates would serve their parties best by standing aside from election contests until personal problems are disposed of in the proper place."

Condon Barred From A-Test

He took a similar stand with regard to Condon, on the ground the Atomic Energy Commission barred him from witnessing an atom bomb test in Nevada last May 7 despite his denial of a charge of Communist association.

The national chairman gave his views to Paul Ziffren of Los Angeles, California Democratic national committeeman, in a letter saying a man's "innocence or guilt should not be the burden of the Democratic party."

Mitchell emphasized that he was not questioning the right of either man to seek office, or the right of the voters to nominate or elect either.

But he added that those rights "do not create or imply any obligation on the part of the National Committee to provide financial or other aid or support to any individual candidate."

Ziffren Indicates Support

"The right and privilege to determine how our available funds will be spent are ours," he added. "And in these cases we will exercise our right to withhold support."

In Los Angeles Ziffren, indicating that he agreed with Mitchell in the Roosevelt action, said that at this time, "No individual has a right to use the Democratic party for personal vindication nor to divert the energy and prestige of the Democratic party to solving personal problems." He said he could give no opinion in regard to Condon.

Last month the California 26th Congressional District Council voted to give Roosevelt its endorsement. Roosevelt is seeking the Democratic nomination at the June 8 primary election in this district. He also crossfiled for the Republican nomination.

Giant Smuggling Ring Is Smashed

HEIDELBERG, Germany, April 4 (AP)—A giant international smuggling ring, estimated to have handled at least 24 million dollars worth of goods and currency annually, was smashed today in a coordinated series of raids throughout West Germany and France, U. S. Army headquarters said tonight.

An Army spokesman said that scores of people, among them American civilians, Germans and stateless persons were arrested in the raids in which more than 800 American, German and French police in eight cities took part. The ring operated in four European countries.

He said investigators reported that many of the ringleaders have been caught but that the raids will continue.

He added that the names of those arrested would not be disclosed until charges are filed.

Contraband currency, jewelry, gold, cigarettes and vehicles worth more than $175,000 have been confiscated, the announcement said.

Today's Chuckle

A Russian named Rudolph looked out the window one morning and said, "It's raining."

"No, it's sleeting," said the wife.

"It's raining, doggone it," he answered, "And Rudolph the Red knows rain, dear."

Albanians On Trial

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Communist Albania announced the opening of a show trial tomorrow of eight Albanians accused of plotting with Americans to overthrow the regime of Premier Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha.

Losses Force Red Pullback In Indochina

Vietminh Withdraws Slightly From Fort As Attacks Halted

HANOI, Indochina, April 4 (AP)—Stung by their heavy losses, the Communist-let Vietminh forces began pulling back slightly from the Dien Bien Phu barricades tonight and a French spokesman said it was doubtful if they would be able to mount another heavy assault within the next 12 hours.

The pullback was from the eastern and southeastern defenses of the dustbowl fort 175 miles west of Hanoi.

A French High Command spokesman emphasized, however, that the withdrawal was only about 400 or 500 yards and that it was "too early" to say that it constituted a retreat in force.

The spokesman said the withdrawal was not a definite indication that the Vietminh intended to abandon its attacks in those sectors. It could be that the enemy was merely regrouping for fresh mass assaults, he added.

Rebel Losses Heavy

Since the Communist-led rebels started their all-out attack March 13, authoritative estimates said they have lost 21,000 in killed and wounded, or about half the attacking force.

But the French were still outnumbered.

The defenders earlier today turned back fresh waves trying to overrun the northwestern defenses where the enemy had advanced to within a mile of the core of the valley.

The French also counterattacked time after time.

Vietminh attackers, moving up behind a curtain of rebel artillery fire tried to smash through the barbed wire barriers only to be cut to ribbons by the fortress' American-supplied guns.

Bitter Artillery Duels

The roar of big guns echoed across the dusty, hill-circled plain as French and Vietminh artillery waged bitter duels attempting to knock out each other's firing positions.

The rebels concentrated on trying to strengthen their footholds in the northwest and southeast, where they hold ground barely a mile from the bastion's core.

But they struck also at the southwest defenses. The French said they pushed back the first rebel attempt at a breakthrough there, inflicting "heavy losses." At one point the French counted 200 Vietminh dead, their bodies dangling like scarecrows in the barbed wire defenses which still held firm.

Slaying Of Navy Wife Is Probed

LEXINGTON PARK, Md., April 4 (AP) — A 31-year-old Navy petty officer was sought today for questioning about the slaying of a young Navy wife who was beaten to death with a hammer while her husband was on duty at the nearby Patuxent Naval Air Station.

Police said the victim, 22-year-old Mrs. Iona Josephine Davis, was found dead by her husband, Seaman James Edward Davis, when he returned home about 10 a.m. yesterday.

Dr. Julian S. Lane, deputy county medical examiner, placed the time of death at about 8:30 a.m. and said the small brunette had died of a compound fracture of the skull caused by a hammer found near the body. He said there had also been an attempt at strangulation but the blows on the head caused death.

Police quoted Davis as saying he found his wife on the floor and ran outside. A neighbor, Chief Yeoman Frank Boudrou went into the apartment with the distraught husband, examined the body, then called police.

State Police quoted a neighbor as having seen a man leave the apartment earlier.

Death Penalty Urged For Peacetime Spying

WASHINGTON, Arpil 4 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell today recommended that the death penalty be provided for peacetime espionage.

In an annual report to Congress he pointed out that under existing law espionage in wartime carries the death penalty while in peacetime the maximum possible punishment is 20 years imprisonment.

Survivors Of Tragic Fire

Lawrence Richards, 29-year-old coal miner, and his 2-year-old son, Charles, were the only survivors of a fire that destroyed their home at Glouster, Ohio, killing the 25-year-old Mrs. Richards and five other children ranging in age from 9 months to 8 years.

Republicans See Defeat Of Demo Tax-Slash Drive

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Republican Senate leaders were reported increasingly confident today they can turn back a Democratic drive to raise income tax exemptions for all taxpayers and their dependents, thus cutting their tax bills.

At the same time, Senate Democratic sources said they thought their chances of success now are no better than 50-50. A short while ago they had high hopes of winning.

Senators on both sides of the issue were wary about commenting publicly, largely because they agree that a sharp change in economic conditions in the next two months could upset all their present calculations.

Hearings Open Tuesday

Democrats still think they will win handily in the Senate if unemployment continues to climb into the summer months.

The fight over the income tax reduction will come on a big tax revision bill, on which the Senate Finance Committee opens three weeks of public hearings Tuesday.

Chairman Millikin (R-Colo) hopes to get the measure up for floor debate in May, but some Democratic leaders say June is more likely.

One GOP senator told a reporter he did not know of any votes his side will lose for certain on the income tax cut except Sen. Langer (R-ND), who has announced he is for boosting exemptions.

Byrd To Oppose Reduction

This source said he was sure several Southern Democrats would oppose the tax reduction. Sen. Byrd (D-Va) has said he will be against it, and some other Southerners are understood to be ready to join him.

On the other hand, Sen. George (D-Ga), the dean of the Senate, is spearheading the move to raise the exemptions, and Democrats favoring an income tax cut are banking heavily on his leadership. George was chairman of the Finance Committee for 10 years.

Enthusiastic Audience Hears Sen. McCarthy

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) told a highly enthusiastic audience today he would continue to battle communism at home and abroad.

McCarthy addressed more than six thousand guests including Francis Cardinal Spellman at the Communion breakfast of the Police Department's Holy Name Society. His half-hour speech was frequently interrupted by lengthy applause, and as he neared the end of the talk, spectators shouted "Keep going," "You're only warming up" and "Keep giving it to them."

The senator afterward was practically carried from the ballroom of the Hotel Astor as police bodyguards around him fought past the throng that sought to shake his hand.

Probers Won't Retain Sears If Army Objects

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP — Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said tonight that the Senate Investigations subcommittee will not keep Samuel P. Sears as counsel during its probe of the Army fight with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) if the Army objects.

Sears, a Boston lawyer, will be questioned by subcommittee members tomorrow about statements attributed to him in 1952 as hailing McCarthy's re-election and praising the Wisconsin senator for "a great job" in driving Communists out of government.

These statements came to light after Sears was appointed last Thursday. He told a news conference, in answer to a question, that he had never taken a stand publicly or privately on McCarthy or "McCarthyism."

Stevens May Make Decision

Mundt said he presumed Secretary of the Army Stevens would make the decision on whether there was any objection to Sears serving.

In talking to reporters after being interviewed on NBC's TV show "Meet the Press," Mundt also said the Defense Department had opened a "Pandora's box" in appointing its own counsel and raising the question of whether the counsel would be permitted to cross-examine witnesses at the hearing. The same rules should apply to both sides, he said.

Upset By Welch Appointment

Mundt, who will serve as chairman of the subcommittee while McCarthy steps aside during the inquiry, said he had almost persuaded the Wisconsin senator to give up his own rights to cross-examine.

This, Mundt said, was upset by the appointment of Joseph N. Welch, 63, another Boston attorney, as the Army counsel. The only way McCarthy could be prevented from maintaining his right to cross-examine, if he insisted, Mundt said, would be for the Senate itself to overrule him.

Britons Hopeful Churchill Eases H-Bomb Tension

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Britons turned to Winston Churchill tonight with an anxiety felt only in war years. They were hopeful his vast personal prestige can bring an understanding among the big powers on the hydrogen bomb and disarmament generally.

Even some leftwing critics of the prime minister privately felt he alone could ease the tension which followed the latest American H-bomb tests in the Pacific.

Churchill worked all day at Chartwell, his country residence, on the speech he will deliver in the House of Commons tomorrow in debate on the H-bomb. The speech was expected to be directed at the Americans and Russians as much as to quiet fears at home.

He has received American aid and cooperation in preparing his stand. Informants in Washington said he had been given information on the H-bomb tests permissible under restrictions of the Atomic Energy Act.

Fire Sweeps Town

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., April 4 (AP)—A $250,000 fire burned through the center of this eastern Ontario town shortly after noon today leaving 26 persons homeless and razing 10 stores. One person was injured.

Jazz Band Eludes German Reds To Escape To West

BERLIN, April 4 (AP)—The leader of an East German fugitive jazz band said today he fled the Soviet zone with his 17 musicians and girl vocalist because Communist youth gangs had been ordered to break up his concerts.

Bandleader Karl Walter, 46, said his home in Chemnitz was under police observation Friday when the swing aggregation made its mass exodus to Allied West Berlin.

The musicians, ordered by the Communists to disband for playing "provocative American jazz", evaded secret police by traveling the 110 miles by train, singly and in small groups.

"Some friends waarned me on Thursday we were in danger," Walter related. "The orchestra already had made an agreement to go to the West if things got too hot."

"My main worry now is that we can stick together in one (refugee) camp so we can rehearse," Walter said.

Members of the band, lodged in a refugee center here, whipped up an impromptu jam session during the day, then strolled the streets of West Berlin. They only bemoaned the fact that it was Sunday and the music stores were closed.

Walter said boogie woogie music and Stan Kenton style arrangements kept him in hot water with the Communists for more than three years. He added the music had "great appeal" for German youth.

A first break came from the U. S. High Commission Station RIAS (Radio in Allied Sector) which said it would put the band on the air in their first free world booking before the group is flown to Western Germany.

Withdrawal From Calif. Race Urged

Chairman Mitchell Also Refuses Party Backing To Condon

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell today denied the Democratic party's support to James Roosevelt and suggested that he get out of the race for a California congressional seat.

Mitchell also withheld the national party's backing from Rep. Robert L. Condon, a first term member seeking re-election in the face of charges—which he has denied—that he is a security risk.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was accused of misconduct in a separate maintenance suit brought by his wife, Romelle. But he has said he would go ahead with his political race as "the answer to whatever 'smears the opposition might ever raise against me."

Mitchell said he believes "that most Democrats would feel that candidates would serve their parties best by standing aside from election contests until personal problems are disposed of in the proper place."

Condon Barred From A-Test

He took a similar stand with regard to Condon, on the ground the Atomic Energy Commission barred him from witnessing an atom bomb test in Nevada last May 7 despite his denial of a charge of Communist association.

The national chairman gave his views to Paul Ziffren of Los Angeles, California Democratic national committeeman, in a letter saying a man's "innocence or guilt should not be the burden of the Democratic party."

Mitchell emphasized that he was not questioning the right of either man to seek office, or the right of the voters to nominate or elect either.

But he added that those rights "do not create or imply any obligation on the part of the National Committee to provide financial or other aid or support to any individual candidate."

Ziffren Indicates Support

"The right and privilege to determine how our available funds will be spent are ours," he added. "And in these cases we will exercise our right to withhold support."

In Los Angeles Ziffren, indicating that he agreed with Mitchell in the Roosevelt action, said that at this time, "No individual has a right to use the Democratic party for personal vindication nor to divert the energy and prestige of the Democratic party to solving personal problems." He said he could give no opinion in regard to Condon.

Last month the California 26th Congressional District Council voted to give Roosevelt its endorsement. Roosevelt is seeking the Democratic nomination at the June 8 primary election in this district. He also crossfiled for the Republican nomination.

Giant Smuggling Ring Is Smashed

HEIDELBERG, Germany, April 4 (AP)—A giant international smuggling ring, estimated to have handled at least 24 million dollars worth of goods and currency annually, was smashed today in a coordinated series of raids throughout West Germany and France, U. S. Army headquarters said tonight.

An Army spokesman said that scores of people, among them American civilians, Germans and stateless persons were arrested in the raids in which more than 800 American, German and French police in eight cities took part. The ring operated in four European countries.

He said investigators reported that many of the ringleaders have been caught but that the raids will continue.

He added that the names of those arrested would not be disclosed until charges are filed.

Contraband currency, jewelry, gold, cigarettes and vehicles worth more than $175,000 have been confiscated, the announcement said.

U.S.-Russian Atom Gulf Wider Than Ever As U.N. Talks Set

Call For Conference Prompted By Reaction To H-Bomb Explosions

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The United States and Russia will go into new disarmament talks at the United Nations more widely split over control of atomic weapons than they have ever been.

The Western powers' call for an early meeting of the U.N. Disarmament Commission seems to be prompted more by public and political reaction in Europe to the terrific impact of the American hydrogen bomb explosions than to any belief that the time has finally come when something can be accomplished with the Russians.

Authorities here said they do not plan to present to the Disarmament Commission any report on the hydrogen bomb explosions. Nor do they expect to disclose to the group the secret conversations between the United States and Russia which have been under way since January on President Eisenhower's proposal for an atoms-for-peace pool.

The original incentive for the U.N. disarmament talks reportedly was taken by Prime Minister Churchill's British government which is under fire in Parliament because of Churchill's stout support of the American policy of developing and experimenting with the H-bomb.

Churchill defended it as a deterrent to war, but his Labor opposition forced the scheduling of a debate this week on a call for a top level big power meeting to do something about the bomb.

Presumably the action taken toward assembling the Disarmament Commission will permit the prime minister to assure his critics and supporters alike that such steps as are possible are being taken through the prescribed machinery of the United Nations. In this, he can assert he has the full cooperation and support of the United States.

Youths Face Trial On Abduction Charge

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP)—Three Virginia youths will be tried in Federal Court tomorrow on charges of abducting a Hagerstown, Md., girl last Oct. 17 and taking here to Round Hill, Va., against her will.

The girl, 20-year-old Marie Jolliffe, reportedly escaped from the trio in Round Hill and notified Virginia State Police.

Scheduled for trial are Earl L. Tomblin, 20, of Purcellville, and Daniel D. Walters, 20, and Marion F. Hough, 21, both of Round Hill.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 4 (AP)—Gov. Marland helped dedicate West Virginia University's new School of Music buildings here today.

Others taking part included Charles E. Hodges of Charleston, president of the University board of governors; WVU President Irvin Stewart, and Dr. Weldon Hart, director of the school.

Senators Hit T-H Revision Bill Section

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Sens. Douglas (D-Ill) and Kennedy (D-Mass) today denounced a provision in the Senate's Taft-Hartley revision bill as one certain to speed the shift of industry from the Northeast to the South and West.

And Sen. Cooper (R-Ky) indicated he had reservations about the provision, although he voted for it in committee.

All three senators are members of the Labor Committee which last week approved the Senate T-H revision.

The disputed section would allow states to write and enforce labor laws of their own to prevent labor dispute emergencies which would "constitute a clear and present danger" to the health or safety of citizens of the state.

Douglas said Southern and some Western states, many of which forbid compulsory unionism, "will promise industry protection against unions and strikes and other legitimate union activity," if the proposal becomes law.

Kennedy said some states, in a bid for new industry, would compete with each other in an effort to guarantee freedom from labor trouble.

Frederick County Jail Escapees Captured

FREDERICK, Md., April 4 (AP)—Nick Koprivich, 42-year-old convicted safe robber who escaped with another prisoner from the Frederick County Jail yesterday, was recaptured tonight.

State Police here said Koprivich, of Weirton, W. Va., was seized by Montgomery County police at a home near Gaithersburg, Md., about 9 p.m. and was taken to the jail at Rockville.

Details of the arrest were not immediately available.

His companion in the escape, Norman L. Day, 25, had been recaptured last night near Point of Rocks, Md. He was taken without a struggle.

Israel Blamed For Two Attacks On Egyptians

JERUSALEM, Israel Section, April 4 (AP)—Israel was blamed today by the U.N. Israel-Egyptian Mixed Armistice Commission for two "attacks at Egyptian positions behind armistice demarcation lines" on April 2, an Israel military spokesman announced tonight.

Four Egyptian soldiers, including one officer, were reported killed and one soldier wounded during these attacks, which according to the commission decision were carried out by "Israel regulars or semiregulars."

Movie Tax Slash Not Passed Along

[By The Associated Press]

A survey of five Maryland cities shows that government excise taxes reduced last week have generally had no effect on movie and other amusement prices but have resulted in lower prices on handbags, jewelry, cosmetics and luggage.

Most movie operators polled in Annapolis, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Cambridge and Frederick indicated they are leaving the three to eight cent tax cut in their ticket prices.

The manager of one Hagerstown theater said: "We've just been holding our own, anyway." He said the few cents difference would help his theater to continue operating.

David O. Colburn, manager of Annapolis Theaters, a division of Frank H. Durkee Enterprises of Baltimore, said it would "take some time before the price cut would be felt by the theatergoers." He said it was his feeling most theaters would absorb the tax into their income.

Baseball clubs throughout the east have also indicated they plan no change in ticket prices, at least for this year, in the reduction which chopped in half the 20 per cent federal tax.

All department stores checked in the state were passing on a similar 50 per cent reduction in taxes on luggage, jewelry, cosmetics and other items.

A&P Stores Slated To Reopen Thursday

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP)—A&P food stores in a five-state area, which were closed two weeks ago by a strike of bakers here, are scheduled to reopen next Thursday.

W. A. Donahoe, vice president of the grocery chain's Atlantic division, said it will take that long to restock them for full service.

The strike, which began March 14, ended yesterday with the AFL bakers accepting a 10-cent hourly wage boost retroactive to Jan. 1. They had originally asked a 15-cent increase.

Four Arrested In Baltimore Holdup; $22,000 Recovered

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP) — Four young men, ranging in age from 20 to 27, were arrested today in connection with the April 1 holdup of $30,491 from the Canton Branch of the Provident Savings Bank.

The recovery of about $22,000 in cash was also announced in simultaneous statements from federal, state and city law enforcement officials who combined efforts in investigating the robbery and taking the suspects into custody.

Names of the four men were being withheld pending filing of formal charges tomorrow.

The joint announcements were made by Col. Beverly Ober, Baltimore police commissioner; George Cochran Doub, U. S. Attorney; Anselm Sodaro, state's attorney, and S. S. Alden, agent in charge of the FBI office here.

The arrests were made by FBI agents and city detectives Saturday afternoon and evening and early Sunday.

Alden and Ober said all the suspects were armed when taken into custody.

The first arrest was made Saturday afternoon in Northwest Baltimore, officers reported, when one of the suspects was picked up in an automobile. He gave a Lima, O., address.

Two others, both of the 1400 block of Linden Ave., were picked up early Saturday night. Investigators said the fourth, listed as living in the 1800 block of Linden Ave., was taken into custody this morning.

The holdup last Thursday occurred shortly after a Brink's Inc., armored car had delivered $24,700 to the bank.

Three young men, all armed and wearing adhesive plaster on their faces along with dark glasses, entered the bank and lined ten terrified customers against the wall.

While one of the gunmen stood watch by the door, the two others carried out the robbery.

Dulles To Outline Administration's Aid Policy Today

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration's program for another year of foreign economic and military aid begins a long and hazardous journey through Congress tomorrow.

Deep cuts in aid authorizations are already in prospect even before Secretary of State Dulles outlines the administration policy before the House Foreign Affairs Committee tomorrow.

No bill is yet before Congress, but on the basis of the President's budget message it is expected he will request authority to spend about 3½ billion dollars in global assistance during the year starting July 1.

While it is a billion dollars less than Congress voted last year, some House members predicted "very deep cuts" in the program to be sent to the Hill, probably after the Easter recess.

Principal business before the Senate in the week ahead is consideration and probable passage of a bill authorizing $1,100,000,000 of new federal aid for highway construction in 1956-57.

The House already has passed legislation authorizing the expenditure of 600 million dollars a year on highways in the next two years.

The House, returning from its public housing battles of last week, considers annual appropriations for the Interior Department Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday takes up the controversial wiretap evidence bill.

Renamed the "anti-traitor" bill by Republican leaders, this measure would legalize the use of wiretapped evidence in federal court cases involving national security cases.

Democratic leaders plan a fight to curb the extent of the attorney general's wiretapping powers.

Six different Presidents of the United States occupied the White House in one nine-year period, between 1841 and 1850.

Blossom Festival Program Indoors

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP) — Cherry Blossoms around Washington's tidal basin drew an estimated 149,000 viewers today but chilly weather drove the Cherry Blossom Festival program indoors.

Queen Frances Mae Fisher and her court of princesses from every state and territory were introduced to a full house crowd of 1,500 at Lisner Auditorium at George Washington University.

NYC President Questions Loan

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—William White, president of the New York Central Railroad, said today he believed all details had not been disclosed concerning a 7½—million dollar loan in the battle for control of the road.

The statement was prompted by an announcement yesterday by the Alleghany Corp., that on March 15 it loaned the sum to Texas Millionaires Clinton W. Murchison and Sidney W. Richardson.

The loans, Alleghany said, might be settled between July 15 and Sept. 15 this year by delivery of New York Central stock at a value of $25 per share.

Alleghany is headed by Robert R. Young, currently fighting for control of the Central.

"Young's position must have been pretty desperate when an arrangement like this was entered into," White said. "Gradually he is being smoked out. If Young and the C. & O. can get away with something like this, the prestige of the Interstate Commerce Commission is going to be badly impaired."

Richardson and Murchison announced in February they had bought 800,000 shares of Central stock for 20 million dollars from the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, which Young formerly headed.

The dairy industry of the United States is larger than either the steel or automobile manufacturing industries.

Mahoney Says Outmoded Patterns Put Road Building Behind Schedule

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP)-George P. Mahoney says it seems foolish to expect the State Roads Commission to keep up with the announced schedule of its multi-million dollar road building program because it is "obliged to operate on patterns and policies inherited from the days of the Model T."

In the 15th of 100 statements the Democratic candidate for governor says he will issue during his campaign, Mahoney said the 568 million dollar roads program "appears to be bogging down in its first three months."

He said as of last January the 1954 goal for contract letting was 78 millions. The 1953 goal was 34 millions.

He noted an announcement that $9,470,000 in contracts have been let so far and said the rate of progress in letting contracts is far below the "level required to meet the goal for the year."

He found no complaint with roads commissioners as individuals or with the "hard working employes of the State Roads Commission."

But he said the sudden increase is going to put a "tremendous administrative and organizational strain" on the commission and its employes and "apparently very little thought has been given to seeing to it that they are prepared to carry the increase."

New York's Dockers Swarm Back To Work

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—Longshore activities resumed peacefully today along New York's vast waterfront. And the big port made ready to start moving mountains of cargo piled on piers during the 29-day strike.

The city's longest dock walkout ended yesterday as some 6,000 wage-hungry longshoremen swarmed back to work amid bright prospects that all 20,000 pier workers would be employed full-time tomorrow.

Today, about 400 longshoremen worked Manhattan piers; 3,000 men were reported working about a dozen piers in Brooklyn, and some 250 handled cargo on Staten Island and in Long Island City. Sunday normally is a dull day along the docks.

Frederick County Jail Escapees Captured

FREDERICK, Md., April 4 (AP)—Nick Koprivich, 42-year-old convicted safe robber who escaped with another prisoner from the Frederick County Jail yesterday, was recaptured tonight.

State Police here said Koprivich, of Weirton, W. Va., was seized by Montgomery County police at a home near Gaithersburg, Md., about 9 p.m. and was taken to the jail at Rockville.

Details of the arrest were not immediately available.

His companion in the escape, Norman L. Day, 25, had been recaptured last night near Point of Rocks, Md. He was taken without a struggle.

Israel Blamed For Two Attacks On Egyptians

JERUSALEM, Israel Section, April 4 (AP)—Israel was blamed today by the U.N. Israel-Egyptian Mixed Armistice Commission for two "attacks at Egyptian positions behind armistice demarcation lines" on April 2, an Israel military spokesman announced tonight.

Four Egyptian soldiers, including one officer, were reported killed and one soldier wounded during these attacks, which according to the commission decision were carried out by "Israel regulars or semiregulars."

Five Die In Hotel Fire

BRISBANE, Australia, April 4 (AP)—Five men died and four others were critically injured today in a mystery explosion and fire which destroyed the Commercial Hotel at Cunnamulla, 468 miles west of Brisbane.

Dulles To Outline Administration's Aid Policy Today

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration's program for another year of foreign economic and military aid begins a long and hazardous journey through Congress tomorrow.

Deep cuts in aid authorizations are already in prospect even before Secretary of State Dulles outlines the administration policy before the House Foreign Affairs Committee tomorrow.

No bill is yet before Congress, but on the basis of the President's budget message it is expected he will request authority to spend about 3½ billion dollars in global assistance during the year starting July 1.

While it is a billion dollars less than Congress voted last year, some House members predicted "very deep cuts" in the program to be sent to the Hill, probably after the Easter recess.

Principal business before the Senate in the week ahead is consideration and probable passage of a bill authorizing $1,100,000,000 of new federal aid for highway construction in 1956-57.

The House already has passed legislation authorizing the expenditure of 600 million dollars a year on highways in the next two years.

The House, returning from its public housing battles of last week, considers annual appropriations for the Interior Department Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday takes up the controversial wiretap evidence bill.

Renamed the "anti-traitor" bill by Republican leaders, this measure would legalize the use of wiretapped evidence in federal court cases involving national security cases.

Democratic leaders plan a fight to curb the extent of the attorney general's wiretapping powers.

Six different Presidents of the United States occupied the White House in one nine-year period, between 1841 and 1850.

Movie Tax Slash Not Passed Along

[By The Associated Press]

A survey of five Maryland cities shows that government excise taxes reduced last week have generally had no effect on movie and other amusement prices but have resulted in lower prices on handbags, jewelry, cosmetics and luggage.

Most movie operators polled in Annapolis, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Cambridge and Frederick indicated they are leaving the three to eight cent tax cut in their ticket prices.

The manager of one Hagerstown theater said: "We've just been holding our own, anyway." He said the few cents difference would help his theater to continue operating.

David O. Colburn, manager of Annapolis Theaters, a division of Frank H. Durkee Enterprises of Baltimore, said it would "take some time before the price cut would be felt by the theatergoers." He said it was his feeling most theaters would absorb the tax into their income.

Baseball clubs throughout the east have also indicated they plan no change in ticket prices, at least for this year, in the reduction which chopped in half the 20 per cent federal tax.

All department stores checked in the state were passing on a similar 50 per cent reduction in taxes on luggage, jewelry, cosmetics and other items.

A&P Stores Slated To Reopen Thursday

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP)—A&P food stores in a five-state area, which were closed two weeks ago by a strike of bakers here, are scheduled to reopen next Thursday.

W. A. Donahoe, vice president of the grocery chain's Atlantic division, said it will take that long to restock them for full service.

The strike, which began March 14, ended yesterday with the AFL bakers accepting a 10-cent hourly wage boost retroactive to Jan. 1. They had originally asked a 15-cent increase.

Four Arrested In Baltimore Holdup; $22,000 Recovered

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP) — Four young men, ranging in age from 20 to 27, were arrested today in connection with the April 1 holdup of $30,491 from the Canton Branch of the Provident Savings Bank.

The recovery of about $22,000 in cash was also announced in simultaneous statements from federal, state and city law enforcement officials who combined efforts in investigating the robbery and taking the suspects into custody.

Names of the four men were being withheld pending filing of formal charges tomorrow.

The joint announcements were made by Col. Beverly Ober, Baltimore police commissioner; George of the suspects was picked up in an automobile. He gave a Lima, O., address.

Two others, both of the 1400 block of Linden Ave., were picked up early Saturday night. Investigators said the fourth, listed as living in the 1800 block of Linden Ave., was taken into custody this morning.

The holdup last Thursday occurred shortly after a Brink's Inc., armored car had delivered $24,700 to the bank.

Three young men, all armed and wearing adhesive plaster on their faces along with dark glasses, entered the bank and lined ten terrified customers against the wall.

While one of the gunmen stood watch by the door, the two others carried out the robbery.

Cochran Doub, U. S. Attorney; Anselm Sodaro, state's attorney, and S. S. Alden, agent in charge of the FBI office here.

The arrests were made by FBI agents and city detectives Saturday afternoon and evening and early Sunday.

Alden and Ober said all the suspects were armed when taken into custody.

Blossom Festival Program Indoors

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP) — Cherry Blossoms around Washington's tidal basin drew an estimated 149,000 viewers today but chilly weather drove the Cherry Blossom Festival program indoors.

Queen Frances Mae Fisher and her court of princesses from every state and territory were introduced to a full house crowd of 1,500 at Lisner Auditorium at George Washington University.

NYC President Questions Loan

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—William White, president of the New York Central Railroad, said today he believed all details had not been disclosed concerning a 7½—million dollar loan in the battle for control of the road.

The statement was prompted by an announcement yesterday by the Alleghany Corp., that on March 15 it loaned the sum to Texas Millionaires Clinton W. Murchison and Sidney W. Richardson.

The loans, Alleghany said, might be settled between July 15 and Sept. 15 this year by delivery of New York Central stock at a value of $25 per share.

Alleghany is headed by Robert R. Young, currently fighting for control of the Central.

"Young's position must have been pretty desperate when an arrangement like this was entered into," White said. "Gradually he is being smoked out. If Young and the C. & O. can get away with something like this, the prestige of the Interstate Commerce Commission is going to be badly impaired."

Richardson and Murchison announced in February they had bought 800,000 shares of Central stock for 20 million dollars from the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, which Young formerly headed.

The dairy industry of the United States is larger than either the steel or automobile manufacturing industries.

Mahoney Says Outmoded Patterns Put Road Building Behind Schedule

BALTIMORE, April 4 (AP)-George P. Mahoney says it seems foolish to expect the State Roads Commission to keep up with the announced schedule of its multi-million dollar road building program because it is "obliged to operate on patterns and policies inherited from the days of the Model T."

In the 15th of 100 statements the Democratic candidate for governor says he will issue during his campaign, Mahoney said the 568 million dollar roads program "appears to be bogging down in its first three months."

He said as of last January the 1954 goal for contract letting was 78 millions. The 1953 goal was 34 millions.

He noted an announcement that $9,470,000 in contracts have been let so far and said the rate of progress in letting contracts is far below the "level required to meet the goal for the year."

He found no complaint with roads commissioners as individuals or with the "hard working employes of the State Roads Commission."

But he said the sudden increase is going to put a "tremendous administrative and organizational strain" on the commission and its employes and "apparently very little thought has been given to seeing to it that they are prepared to carry the increase."

New York's Dockers Swarm Back To Work

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—Longshore activities resumed peacefully today along New York's vast waterfront. And the big port made ready to start moving mountains of cargo piled on piers during the 29-day strike.

The city's longest dock walkout ended yesterday as some 6,000 wage-hungry longshoremen swarmed back to work amid bright prospects that all 20,000 pier workers would be employed full-time tomorrow.

Today, about 400 longshoremen worked Manhattan piers; 3,000 men were reported working about a dozen piers in Brooklyn, and some 250 handled cargo on Staten Island and in Long Island City. Sunday normally is a dull day along the docks.

Couple's Attempt To Wed Foiled

County authorities yesterday continued to hold a young Pennsylvania man here on a warrant charging him "with corrupting the morals of a minor girl," awaiting Pennsylvania authorities who are expected to pick him up.

They said last night the man, Harold R. Zook, 23, who was arrested Friday by Cpl. William F. Baker of the Maryland State Police when he attempted to get a marriage license at the Court House, is expected to waive extradition to Pennsylvania.

Zook and the girl, Susan Grace Muth, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Muth, of New Wilmington, Pa., applied for the license Wednesday and tried to get the permit Friday.

Miss Muth, who was held overnight in the Allegany County Infirmary detention room, was returned home Saturday by her parents. She is a high school junior and a cheerleader.

10 Dangerous Drivers To Look Out For

Are the most dangerous automobile drivers those that zip along at 80 or 90 miles an hour? Not necessarily, according to L. M. Van Noppen, vice president of a large finance company. Van Noppen's men supervise 30,000,000 miles of auto travel every year. They clock the every day driver as well as the Sunday variety.

Van Noppen has come out with a report on what he calls "roadbirds." He says there are dozens of these "birds" who ought to be avoided. They are the ones who bring the ambulance screaming.

He has listed 10 drivers to look out for. First, there is the guy who thinks the definition of a split second is the time between the change of the light and the honk of the horn behind. He's a "hornblower." Then there is the "creeping headstart." The driver who lets the clutch take over and begins crawling ahead while the light still is red.

The "bull-headed crasher." That is the driver who jams into the line of traffic, forcing other drivers to stop, and maybe knocks fenders or possibly racks up an innocent street-crosser. The "red-nosed road runner." He's easy to spot. He has stopped at too many gin mills. Good idea to stay behind him.

The "tunnel-eyed whizzer." The guy who can see only straight ahead. He makes a fast pass at every crossroad without looking. The "bright-eyed blinder." Every sensible driver recognizes this fellow. The "compulsive passer." The man who, on the final count, doesn't live very long. He passes everything on the road. The "fence sitter." The guy who doesn't know where he is going or how he is going to get there, but stops in the middle of traffic to ask his spouse, or look for road signs.

The "wood-headed scene watcher." The bird who has to look for native birds or a rare bush under a tree—while driving.

And finally, the "large-mouth jughead." That would be the "hot-rod," so called.

But, at that, let's cut out that speeding.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

"Chopping Block" Assignment

Senator Karl Mundt sure got himself what he calls a "chopping block" assignment when he stepped into the investigation as to who used rough language on whom between the McCarthy staff and the Stevens staff. The search for a favorably known lawyer of even seeming impartiality has been difficult because who wants to run an inquiry into childishness? The first lists of lawyers contained truly distinguished names, but each turned down the assignment. A counsel, Samuel Sears, has now been found who is willing to bring this dispute to a conclusion.

Mundt, who has been in the thick of it all, in his weekly report to his constituents, summarizes his conclusions as follows:

". . . (1) Involved here is no high crime against the government like treason; no allegations of disloyalty against any of the parties concerned; no acts of corruption punishable by law. Yet, neither the deep freeze and mink coat disclosures; the charges of graft in the procurement and use of government oil tankers; the five per cent commission agents; or the gift of American monetary plates to the Communists (in all of which investigations I participated) remotely rivaled the current affair in the attention being devoted by the newspapers and the radio. Only the Hiss case (in which I also served as acting chairman)—exceeded this one in news coverage and editorial interest. (2) Involved here at worst are misconduct and misrepresentation by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both but unless perjury is subsequently committed in sworn testimony before our committee no crime punishable by law is now charged or indicated. (3) Involved here at best are misunderstandings and mistakes by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both which have interfered with the orderly work of a growing number of officials both in the Army and in Congress."

Although Senator Mundt makes the point that no matter what was said among the various gentlemen involved in this controversy, no one actually yielded to pressure or blackmail, the fact is that the investigations have been stopped. In effect, all the members of the committee, including Senator Joe McCarthy, have yielded to the pressure that the McCarthy investigations into the infiltration of government departments by Communists be stopped. They have stopped.

This is undoubtedly satisfactory to those who object to investigations, particularly of themselves and their friends. Perhaps their hope is that McCarthy may be thwarted altogether, and that the investigations will not proceed.

In introducing this discussion in his weekly report, Senator Mundt said:

Whether it is because of the great degree to which global communism has affected all our lives, or because of the controversial nature of McCarthy's operations, or because so many Americans have had relatives in the Army these past 20 years—or for some as yet undisclosed reason or cause—it is still difficult to understand the almost feverish interest of reporters and publications in our deliberations."

The interest is normal. It is not in the incident of the Cohn-Adams discussions. It is not in the harassed David Schine. It is in Joe McCarthy. Joe is what in radio they call a controversial person—one whose every word and action starts a controversy. It is true about anyone who comes near him. For instance, William F. Buckley Jr. writes a book on "McCarthy and His Enemies," whereupon the Women's National Republican Club of New York withdraws an invitation for him to address them.

Apparently in this free land, orthodoxy requires non-association with McCarthy, although I do recall the liberals complaining that McCarthy was guilty of imposing conformity.

Often controversies are over nothing particularly important, like, for instance, that one which seems to burn in some men's souls as to whether Bacon or someone else wrote Shakespeare because Shakespeare could not have written what he did write all by himself. What difference does it really make? Or, it is like the theologians who grow furious over the years of Joshua, some saying, as though they really knew, that he lived 200 years before Moses, and that therefore he could not have succeeded Moses, who might not have existed anyhow.

Joe McCarthy just is controversial and everything he does excites interest, enthusiasm and anger. And the reporters thrive on it, whether it is important or only adolescent.

Back Seat Drivers Can Relax

U. S. Pledged To United Military Action In Indochina

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

The news from Indochina only increases the importance of the commitment the President and Secretary Dulles publicly made to the French government a week ago.

Although neither the Congress nor the country seems to realize it, America now stands publicly committed to united military action to win the Indochina War, if this becomes necessary. "United action" was the milder phrase that Secretary Dulles used in his Overseas Press Club speech. But his warning that this "united action" might "involve serious risks" showed plainly what he meant.

This interpretation of Dulles was in turn supported by the way the President handled the problem at his press conference. And this interpretation has been given by the State Department, in reply to the anxious official inquiries made by the British and French.

Why, first of all, did Secretary Dulles feel forced to offer this enormously important and far-reaching commitment at this time? Some observers, including these reporters, have been warning that such a step would be necessary for many weeks. But until very recently, the State Department did not share this unpleasing view of the situation.

Answer Relatively Simple

The answer to the riddle is rather simple. Public men rarely do immensely disagreeable things until they have to. When General Navarre took command in Indochina, he produced the Navarre plan, which was "a plan for victory." Although the evidence was to the contrary, the State and Defense Departments kept hoping against hope that the Navarre plan might work after all. That phase only ended when General Paul Ely came to Washington for his recent talks with President Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

General Ely had just been to Indochina to inspect the situation on behalf of Defense chiefs of staff. He had come back via Paris, where he had talked with the leaders of his government. He brought the word to our government that there was no hope of victory in Indochina, at least with the means now at the disposal of the French command there. In these circumstances, he stated that French policy must be to secure a negotiated settlement at all costs.

There is no fighting line in Indochina as there was in Korea. The enemy is everywhere, and if the French withdraw, the Communist forces will enjoy absolute predominance. Thus any local "negotiated settlement" must surely lead — and lead rather rapidly—to a final total Communist victory in Indochina, with all its catastrophic consequences throughout Asia.

The message of Gen. Ely was certainly highly unwelcome to an administration that had been hoping to luck through in Indochina, at least until the fall elections. But the facts now had to be faced.

Dulles, Radford Deserve Credit

Those who deserve the very high credit for seeing that the facts were squarely faced are Secretary Dulles and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Arthur Radford. They were the team whose rock-like insistence on action to save Indochina finally won the day in a difficult and agonizing debate among our policy makers. They were firm. The President was with them. So the Dulles speech was made.

The second question to be asked, therefore, is whether the Dulles speech inevitably means future American involvement in another Asian war. Obviously, it may mean just this, if the French cannot win with the means they now have, and will not carry on the war without hope of victory. But it does not necessarily mean this.

Here the key fact is something not as yet known to the public. At Berlin, Secretary Dulles had several most significant private and informal talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov. Dulles took the opportunity of these talks to give Molotov a most solemn warning on the subject of Indochina. In effect he said that war was the very last thing the United States wanted, but that, in the last analysis, he feared we should have to fight rather than see Indo-China absorbed by the Communist empire.

A possible, indeed a probable result of these warnings has already been seen in Peking. In a deeply meaningful speech made some weeks ago, Chen Yun, a member of the Chinese Politburo, hinted that it might be necessary to abandon the Indochinese Communists to their fate, in order to keep the peace in Asia. In the light of this speech by Chen Yun, it seems possible that the great offensive against Dien Phu was ordered by the Indochinese Communists as a last, desperate effort to win the war before their friends betrayed them.

If such a betrayal is being considered by the Chinese and Russians, the Dulles speech will make the case for it much stronger. By the same token, the Dulles speech has cut the grounds from under the growing group of appeasers in Paris.

By his bold stroke, Dulles has completely altered the outlook for the coming conference at Geneva, which had been so desperately disheartening until he spoke out. If we are not too rigid on our side, there is an off-chance that Geneva will produce an acceptable solution of the Indochinese problem. If the Russians and Chinese refuse after all to cease their support of the Communists in Indochina, a French surrender of Indochina will still be unlikely. But then the practical meaning of "united action" will have to be spelled out.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Begin to understand the psychology of the famous financier who took a yearly trip into the Grand Canyon.

He told me it made him regard humility as the sixth sense. About the third of the chuteward safari he felt as useless as painting on china.

About half-way into the tourist trap he was sure he didn't mean any more than a chirp in an omelet. And all the way down he decided to turn as square as city blocks.

He commuted on the Bright Angel Trail featuring Jacob's Ladder and other perpindicular toeholds. But the Bright Angel is a bowling alley compared to the Kaibab. That twists like a parade on a circular stairway.

We've been down both to qualify for a driver's license on a mule. Neither one of the bottomless boulevards means a jigger alongside the Thunder River Trail. When you're on that you could use another trail alongside.

The Thunder River Trail is just a wrinkle in the rocks. We asked a veteran downhill guide how he rated the Thunder River Detour. He said, "Keep going until it scares me."

We asked if he turned back. He said, "Nope, I blindfold myself."

How about getting to one of those turns where there's nothing around the corner. He said, "Then I blindfold the mule."

Warning Signals Are Beneficial In Apoplexy Attacks

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Apoplexy is unpredictable. In some instances, it occurs so rapidly the individual falls and becomes unconscious while walking down the street. Others awaken in the morning and do not realize that one side of the body is paralyzed until they try to get out of bed. Here, little can be done along the line of prevention.

On the other hand, some strokes are preceded by warning signals. These signs include weakness and numbness of arms and legs, transient attacks of difficulty in speaking, visual disorders, loss of memory, vomiting, or headache. When such symptoms are recognized as omens of impending stroke, much can be done to delay the disorder from developing or to prevent it.

Last year, Dr. Miller Fisher, of Montreal, reported several examples in the Canadian Medical Association journal. One was a 58-year-old man who had suffered at least 500 transient attacks of numbness around the mouth and of the left thumb over a period of two months before the stroke: these episodes lasted two minutes and appeared as often as eight times a day.

A woman was awakened with paralysis of the left arm, leg, and left side of the face, from which she recovered in 20 minutes. During the next four days, she had 50 similar attacks and, on the fifth day, the real McCoy. The stroke of a 66-year-old man was preceded by three bouts of blindness in the right eye and loss of feeling in the left hand. An 84-year-oldster awakened in a confused and disoriented state, which continued for a week and was followed by the more common symptoms of apoplexy. Another suffered from insomnia and felt depressed.

Dr. Fisher also cited an example of the benefits derived from taking cognizance of warning signals. A 70-year-old woman encountered transient attacks of numbness, weakness, and vomiting over a period of five to six months. Now and then she lost "all power out of her body." The right hand and occasionally the right side of the face became numb and she complained of a "peculiar, terrible sensation in her head."

The physician recognized that a clot had formed in one of the arteries near the base of the brain. Heparin and dicumarol were administered to prevent the clot from extending and almost immediately, symptoms disappeared. When the drugs were discontinued numbness returned, vision became blurred, and speech was slurred. She felt weak all over. The drugs were started again but before they had a chance to reach their maximum effect, temporary paralysis of all the extremities occurred along with loss of the ability to swallow, speak, or see. Within two weeks strength, vision, and speech returned to normal.

TOMORROW: Discoverers of the needle.

SCARLIKE GROWTHS

T. V. writes: Can keloids turn into cancer?

REPLY

No. These disfiguring lesions, which occur after burns, wounds, or surgery, are treated via X-ray, radium, or surgery.

MUSCLE INVOLVEMENT

Mrs. S. M. writes: 1. Is there a possible connection between muscular dystrophy and trichinosis, since both affect the muscles? 2. When worms get into the muscles and stay there, do they cause the same type of weakness as in muscular dystrophy?

REPLY

1. Trichinosis follows invasion of the muscles by a parasite, whereas the cause of muscular dystrophy is unknown. In the latter condition, weakness and wasting of the muscles occur throughout the body.

2. In trichinosis, muscle involvement is the end of the road for the parasite, and after the reaction to the invasion subsides the individual is comfortable.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Charley Grimm is equally renowned as a big league baseball manager and as a left-handed banjo player. He was acting in the former capacity in Chicago a few seasons ago with no conspicuous success. In fact, his Cubs were floundering in last place, when one day a scout rushed into the clubhouse in great excitement to report, "Charley, I just saw a kid in a sandlot game fan 27 batters in a row. He had such baffling curves and blinding speed that nobody even got a foul off him till two were out in the ninth. Should I sign him up?" "You're balmy," Grimm told him, strumming idly on his banjo. "It's hitters we need right now. Sign the fellow who got the foul off him."

George Jean Nathan came back from a tryout in a summer theater declaring, "Here's a new playwright who seems bent on making crime pay." "Writing murder mysteries?" inquired Dick Watts. "No, drawing room comedies," corrected Nathan, "but he's murdering the English language."

Senate Has Checked Into McCarthy Or His Charges On Four Occasions

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Though most people have forgotten it, the Senate of the United States has now investigated Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy or his charges four times, and each time he has been able one way or other to squirm out or jump to a new subject. Judging by the way Senator Mundt of South Dakota picked the supposedly neutral counsel to investigate the current McCarthy-Army probe, he should be able to wiggle out of the fifth.

The four previous probes involving McCarthy and his charges were:

1. The Malmedy Massacre—in which McCarthy charged the U. S. Army has tortured German war criminals found guilty of murdering defenseless American prisoners in cold blood. The charge was investigated by gentle, fair-minded Sen. Ray Baldwin, Connecticut Republican, who found McCarthy completely wrong. Whereupon McCarthy angrily stomped out of the hearings, denouncing Baldwin's findings as a "deliberate and clever attempt to whitewash the American military," and charging that Baldwin himself was "criminally responsible." In the end, the disillusioned Baldwin wearily resigned to become a judge in Connecticut.

2. State Department Communism — Maryland's veteran Sen. Millard Tydings, conservative Democrat, was the next to take on McCarthy. Tydings investigated McCarthy's charges that there were 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department and branded the story a "fraud and a hoax." Last month Gen. Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff in Europe and now undersecretary of state, told a congressional committee under oath that not one Communist had been found in the State Department. Meanwhile, McCarthy had again raised the cry of whitewash and carried the fight to Tydings' home state, helping to defeat him for re-election.

3. Maryland Election — McCarthy's campaign against Tydings was so dirty tha the Senate Elections Committee investigated and referred serious charges to the Justice Department. But McCarthy jumped on two of the investigating senators, both Republicans—Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Robert Hendrickson of New Jersey—accusing them of being "prejudiced" and lacking a "background of legal training." In the end, one of the lesser campaign workers, Jon Jonkel, took the rap for the dirty mpaign, and McCarthy, off the hook, cheerily announced: "I think the Maryland election was one of the cleanest campaigns in the country."

Later Attorney General Brownell let the Statute of Limitations run on any prosecution, and President Eisenhower appointed Robert E. Lee, one of those named in the Maryland probe, to the important post of FCC Commissioner.

4. McCarthy's Finances — The most devastating charges against McCarthy were brought up by Sen. William Benton, Connecticut Democrat, who drew up a 12-point indictment accusing McCarthy of unethical and dishonest conduct. McCarthy never answered the charges but he bombarded the Senate Elections Committee investigating him with fiery epithets.

He charged that the committee was engaged in an effort to "discredit and destroy any man who fights Communist subversion," suggested that "several United States senators have known Communists on their staffs," and set his own staff loose on the trail of one of the investigating senators. McCarthy also challenged Benton to repeat his charges without senatorial immunity, which Benton did. McCarthy sued, but recently dropped his libel suit.

Reluctant Senators

With this past history in mind, no senator was anxious to take on the Army-McCarthy probe. The White House originally sent word to Republican leaders that the Senate Armed Services Committee should investigate th rmy-McCarthy wrangle. But this was the last thing Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee, wanted. He is up against a heavy Boston Irish vote in his re-election campaign this year, and he remembered how Senator Lodge, another Republican from Massachusetts, was defeated after he served on the Tydings Committee investigating McCarthy-State Department charges. So Saltonstall ducked.

As a result, the GOP leaders took McCarthy's own suggestion—namely, that he step aside as chairman and let the McCarthy Committee investigate McCarthy.

Shortly thereafter came attempts to drop the whole probe. One of McCarthy's close friends on the committee, Sen. Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, urged behind closed doors that McCarthy's controversial chief counsel, Roy Cohn, and Army Counselor John Adams be suspended. This would have led to sidestepping the investigation, but was rejected by everyone, including McCarthy, who has subsequently changed his mind.

More recently he has been trying to head off a showdown hearing, and is tossing the whole controversy off as a Cohn-Adams affair.

Meanwhile, two dozen names were tossed into a hat and juggled around before the McCarthy Committee finally pulled out Samuel B. Sears of Boston to referee the Army-McCarthy controversy. Actually, Mr. Sears suggested himself for the job and the harassed temporary chairman, Sen. Mundt, reaching Sears by phone in Dallas where he was on a business trip, asked him to come to Washington for consultation.

Meanwhile, the Senate Investigating Committee has received seven copies of the unabridged Army report on the McCarthy-Cohn-Schine-Adams affair, including violent language used by both Cohn and McCarthy. The committee has also asked the Army inspector general for its report on whether McCarthy's ex-investigator, Pvt. David Schine, got favored Army treatment as a result of pressure from McCarthy and Cohn.

Business Works In Cycles

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass—It is sad that men of equal experience and intelligence so totally disagree as to the outlook for 1954. I am one of few who believe that at least the first half of the year will be fairly good.

Are We As We Think?

Business is partly, but not wholly, a psychological affair. Constructive thinking aids both business health and our physical health. Too many people are optimistic or pessimistic due to their physical condition, to the newspaper headlines, and to what radio commentators say. But these men may guess at their conclusions.

Most people think that stocks go up when there are more buyers than sellers, and go down when there are more sellers than buyers. This is a totally wrong belief, as there can never be a seller without a buyer nor a buyer without a seller. Stocks go up when people are more impatient to buy than to sell; and stocks go down when people are more impatient to sell than to buy. The same principle applies to general business, real estate sales, and even wages. The impatience to buy, or to sell, determines prices. Impatience to buy, followed by impatience to sell, followed again by impatience to buy, causes business cycles.

How To Measure Impatience

No one as yet has discovered how to measure mass impatience. Photographers claim they can do it by photographing and studying the faces of the people on the streets, or in stores, or at public gatherings. Physicians claim they can measure the relative impatience of their "patients" who call upon them. The Dow-Jones theorists think they can determine the relative impatience of people by a study of their charts; but I have never found any chartists who became rich by such a study! Statisticians hope that the mechanical brains being developed by the International Business Machines Corporation, or Remington Rand, or National Cash Register Company will solve the problem. I, however, have more faith in the work of Dr. Ernest Furchtgott, professor of phychology, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.

Our brains, hearts, and other organs are constantly sending out electrical waves; perhaps our entire body is sending out such waves. It is entirely possible that our impatience, ambition, self-control, worries, courage, and even spiritual factors (which are forces that make for prosperity or depressions) could be ascertained by studying the electric waves or chemical compounds which our skin is constantly throwing off. If it is possible to diagnose individuals indvidually, we should be able to diagnose a community en masse. I forecast this will be done some day, first analyzing the Ph of the sputum of the group.

A Final Thought

Television broadcasting stations are now sending waves into our homes. By studying the faces of speakers, when unconsciously in repose, it may be possible to know their character and attitude toward life. This was well illustrated by Senator Estes Kefauver's crime hearings which were shown two years ago on television. Now let us assume that a leading broadcasting station temporarily shuts down daily for two minutes and that every possible public group becomes a sending station and broadcasts its own bodily waves, greatly amplified in power. These could be collected by this broadcasting station, which could temporarily become a receiving station. If these mass waves can be interpreted, it should be possible to forecast business conditions with accuracy, barring an unforeseen catastrophe.

If the combined analyses of all sections showed the nation to be frightened and impatient for security only, then a business decline may safely be forecast. So long, however, as these people are throwing off optimistic waves or normal skin reactions, then continued prosperity can be assured. All authorities could then agree as to the future. From the poll of 970 leading newspaper publishers which we took in December, we concluded that less than five per cent of the people were then discouraged. Hence, we cannot now be pessimistic about 1954.

Piedmont Officials Again Air Sewage Disposal Plan

PIEDMONT — John R. Williams of the Johnson and Williams Engineering Firm of Falls Church, Va., conferred with Mayor Allan L. Hill and the City Council at a special meeting Friday night relative to securing of a federal advance for a survey for a sewage system and plant.

Such a bill has been presented in both the House and the Senate of the United States Congress. If the present bill is enacted as now written, when the preliminary survey and application for the advance has been accepted by the federal government, the consulting engineers would be paid one third of their fees and when the final plans have been completed by the engineering firm, the federal government would then pay the engineering firm the other two thirds for their work. The town would not be required to repay the government for this money until work of construction on the project has begun.

Williams advised the sooner application is made for this advance or loan the better opportunity the city might have in receiving it. The maximum amount to be loaned to any one state is $500,000.

Two systems of sewage treatment are used Williams said, one is the primary which would be cheaper to construct and less expensive to operate. The other system is secondary.

In the primary system, services of the city employes would be required about three or four hours a day seven days a week.

The storm and sanitation sewers should be separate and the primary would use chlorine. The chlorinator for this type would cost about $1500, Williams stated. It would use about eight pounds of chlorine in 24 hours.

If a referendum for the sale of bonds were defeated by the city for the sale of bonds the city would not be required to repay the government until the construction begun.

The engineering company would prepare the city's application for the advance which involves a considerable amount of work Williams stated, at no cost to the city.

Mayor W. D. Biddinger, J. H. Simmons, town attorney and O. R. Poling a former mayor of Ridgeley represented Ridgeley at the meeting here. They are faced with the same problem with the state urging construction of sewage disposal systems. Williams pointed out the proposal creates more of a financial hardship on smaller communities than it does the larger cities.

Underpass To Be Removed

Shown here is the Shaft underpass where the Midlothian-Shaft county road intersects with Route 36. This narrow roadway, built over a century ago, has long outlived its usefulness as a passageway for large motor trucks and heavy fire fighting equipment owned by the Borden Shaft fire department. It is also dangerous due to the fact that motorists approaching the underpass from Route 36 are unable to see cars approaching from the opposite direction. The railroad tracks and cross ties were removed during the past week and County Commissioner William Lemmert stated that the county will remove the retaining walls and the overhead timbers at an early date. This will not only provide safer motor travel but will add to the general appearance of the village which is now almost completely separated into two areas on either side of the railroad. Agitation for widening this underpass has been underway for many years and the most intensive effort was made after Shaft Fire Department purchased larger equipment.

Fort Hill's Bob Brant Wins K-C Sportsmanship Award

Dudey Moore Gives Trophy To Senior Star

Dukes Coach Defends Modern Athletes; 170 Attend Annual Dinner

Robert Brant, center of the Fort Hill High School Sentinels, won the fifteenth Knights of Columbus Sportsmanship Award at the annual dinner honoring candidates from the four Greater Cumberland high schools last night at the K. of C. Hall.

The trophy, a gold wrist watch, offered by Cumberland Council No. 586, was presented to Brant, a senior, by Donald "Dudey" Moore, head coach of Duquesne University's basketball team which went to the finals in the recent National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Brant became the fourth Fort Hill player to earn the award since it was instituted in 1940. Milford Dean was the last Fort Hill winner in 1947.

Eight Get Basketballs

Robert "Red" Brown, head basketball coach at West Virginia University, presented miniature gold basketballs to the eight nominees for the Sportsmanship Award, namely, Brant and Eugene Weber, of Fort Hill; David Steele and Dick Rank, Allegany; Eddie Powelson and Frederick "Fritz" Showers, Ridgeley, and Dennis Shuck and Bobby Christ, LaSalle.

The winner of the Sportsmanship Award was announced by David Kauffman, Cumberland attorney and chairman of the awards committee, who pointed out that it was a rather difficult job to select a winner from such a topnotch group of candidates and added that "sportsmanship is an intangible part of your life."

William V. Keegan, grand knight of Cumberland council, greeted the 170 guests, and introduced Mayor Roy Eves, Brother Gregory Mutien, of Orange, N. J., former director of athletics at LaSalle High School, this city; John Somma, of Staten Island, N. Y., formerly of Ridgeley, W. Va., and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, all of whom occupied places at the main table.

Father Martin Makes Hit

The Rev. John Sinnott Martin, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Catholic Church, Baltimore, made a hit as toastmaster with his witty remarks and his funny stories. Father Martin, a native of Fairmont, W. Va., told of the days when he played basketball in Oakland when the "fouls were called on the visiting teams and the ladies didn't come to the games because of the bad language that was used."

Telegrams from past winners of the award, who were unable to attend, were read by Keegan. Bobby Stakem, LaSalle's 1943 winner and Marty Mullaney, LaSalle player who copped the 1953 trophy, were present.

Defends Modern Athlete

In his talk, Coach "Dudey" Moore defended the modern athlete as "vastly superior" to the court stars of bygone days. The Duquesne mentor admitted that he couldn't make the "Iron Dukes" team and neither could many of the other stars turned out in the past at the Pittsburgh school by Coach "Chick" Davies, for whom Moore played.

"The kids today are much taller and they shoot much better," Moore declared. Speaking of defense, "Dudey" stated that there are certain players we have no defense for and he referred to "Red" Brown having a player of that type next season. He was referring to "Hot" Rod Hundley, who set things afire as a freshman at West Virginia the past season.

Moore emphasized that coaches have a tremendous responsibility. "A coach has to know more than the game itself," he declared. "He has to learn the personality of each boy. Each boy must be handled differently and a coach must employ different types of psychology."

TV Creates New Coaches

The speaker stated that coaches have to defend themselves against people who are not familiar with the game. He added that television is a wonderful thing but it creates "new coaches" and that makes it difficult for the basketball mentor.

Moore spoke of his role as honorary coach of the College All-Stars in their eight games with the Globetrotters, and was loud in his praise, especially of Gene Shue, the University of Maryland ace, Selvy, Rosenthal, Hagan and Ramsey, also of the college all-stars.

In conclusion, the Duquesne coach stated that the local K. of C. council was doing a wonderful thing in "recognizing true sportsmanship" and told parents present that "boys learn more in competitive athletics than in any other field—learn lessons true to life."

Robert "Red" Brown, W.V.U. coach, said he was glad to sit near "Dudey" Moore so he could rub up against the Duquesne mentor and take some of his luck back to Morgantown. The W.V.U. redhead spoke of the wave of bad sportsmanship in the country and added that it was about time somebody

Ohio State Trio Takes Six Of 11 Aquatic Titles

Konno Scores Triple In AAU Indoor Tests

By LOU BLACK

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 4 (AP) — With an eye on the Pan-American Games at Mexico next year, Ohio State's great swimming trio of Ford Konno, Yoshi Oyakawa and Dick Cleveland headed back to school today with six of 11 individual National AAU indoor titles among them.

Barring the unexpected, the trio of Hawaiians are a cinch to make the team, according to the AAU swimming officials who expressed joy over what they saw here during the three day meet which ended last night.

Konno Scores Triple

The 21-year-old, 145-pound Konno was the outstanding performer, winning the 220 and 440-yard and the 1,500-meter freestyle races for the championship's only triple, the meet's medal and repeated his triumph of two years ago.

Olympic champion Oyakawa scored a double by capturing the 100 and 150-yard backstroke, and Cleveland won a terrific 100-yard freestyle test against the toughest competition in the long history of this meet.

The meet's only other double was registered by Skippy Browning of Pensacola, Fla., Navy Base, who won the one and three meter driving events.

Other individual victors were Dick Fadgen, an 18-year-old student at La Salle Academy, Providence, R.I., the 220-yard breaststroke; Jack Wardrop, Michigan star from Scotland, the 400-yard individual medley and Dave Hawkins, the Harvard ace from Australia, the 100-yard butterfly.

Browning and Fadgen would be eligible to compete for this country in the Pan-American games expected to take place in mid-March, 1955. The last time this event was held was five years ago at Buenos Aires as a sort of preview for the Olympics. Our team will be selected on the performance of candidates here and in the outdoor AAU meet this summer.

World Mark Lowered

Only one world record was lowered during the meet, and it wasn't in a scheduled event. Konno, while shooting for the 440-yard freestyle title last night, raced the 400 meters in 4:26.7, beating ex-Yale John Marshall's 4:26.9 registered two years ago.

Birmingham Tops Phillies In 2-1 Duel

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4 (AP) — Jack Urban, a rookie pitcher just out of the Army, limited the Philadelphia Phillies to four hits today as Birmingham of the Southern Association edged the National Leaguers in the ninth inning, 2-1.

Leftfielder Jim Engelman scored the Barons' winning run when Joe Polich singled off second baseman Gran Hamner's glove. Engelman had singled, and advanced to third on an error by losing pitcher Jack Sanford after an intentional walk. Shortstop Ted Kazanski of the Phillies doubled in the eighth inning to extend his hitting string to 11 games.

Court Star's Spinal Cord Is Severed

Little Hope Is Held For Junius Kellogg

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 4 (AP)—The attending physician for Junius Kellogg held little hope tonight for recovery of the former Manhattan College basketball star who was among five Negro professional basketball players injured in a car wreck near here.

The doctor, who withheld use of his name, said Kellogg suffered a dislocated vertebra in his neck and his spinal cord was severed.

The physician said Kellogg is paralyzed with the exception of slight movement in one arm. The doctor said Kellogg's conditions is "not good" and he held little hope for the player's recovery.

Kellogg and Boyd Buie, who received a hip injury, are members of the Harlem Globetrotters B team. Buie also is hospitalized.

Three other players, who suffered minor injuries, were released from the hospital today.

The five players were en route to Marianna, Ark., Friday night for an exhibition game when their car blew a tire and overturned about 16 miles north of here.

It was Kellogg's admission to New York Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan in 1951 that he had been asked to shave points in a college game which led to an investigation of wholesale gambling involving a number of top college basketball players.

Agganis Is Star As Bosox Win

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4 (AP)—First baseman Harry Agganis celebrated his promotion to the Boston Red Sox by driving in two runs to give the American Leaguers a 3-2 victory over Atlanta of the Southern Association today before 4,822 fans.

Trailing 2-1 going into the eighth inning, the Red Sox set the stage for Agganis when pitcher Leo Kiely walked and advanced to third on Billy Goodman's double to left. Charlie Maxwell, pinch-hitting was purposely passed. Agganis hit a 3-2 pitch cleanly to right field to send the tying and winning runs across the plate.

Bobby Locke Smiles After Winning $980

CAIRO, April 4 (AP)—South Africa's Bobby Locke won the Egyptian Open championship by 15 strokes today with a 72-hole score of 274 after a final round 70.

Dai Rees of Wales was second with 289. Locke played his usual unemotional golf in turning in a 14 under par card for four rounds. The only time he smiled during the three-day tourney was when he picked up the winner's check for 350 pounds ($980).

Heard Gets Lacing As Relief Pitcher

MOBILE, Ala., April 4 (AP)-Bruce Edwards capped a seven-run seventh inning rally with a pinch homer today as the Chicago Cubs romped to a 10-2 baseball exhibition triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Edwards' roundtripper, a 355-foot shot over the left field fence, came off the slants of rookie Jehosie Heard. The 29-year-old southpaw, up from Portland of the Pacific Coast League, gave up six hits in the disastrous seventh.

Appearing in relief of starter Vern Bickford, Heard ran into trouble after two Cubs were out. Luis Marquez singled, and Don Robertson doubled before Ransom Jackson singled.

Gene Baker smacked a double while Hal Meek laced a two-run scoring single to set the stage for Edwards' circuit blast.

Heard finished the game, giving up half of the 12-hits surrendered to the Cubs who evened their spring series with the Orioles at 7-7.

Bickford, attempting a comeback following his trade by the Milwaukee Braves, gave up three runs and six hits before handing over the pitching chores to Heard in the seventh.

Cincinnati Defeats Washington, 10 To 4

CHARLOTTE, N.C., April 4 (AP)—Outfielder Wally Post, who couldn't make the grade with the Cincinnati Reds last season, hit a three-run homer, two doubles and a single today as the Reds downed the Washington Senators 10-4.

The Reds bunched four of their 15 hits, including Post's homer over the left field fence, to score five runs off Conrado Marrero in the fifth inning.

Lefty Fred Baczewski, an 11-3 winner of the Reds last season, reeled off five scoreless rounds before retiring in favor of Art Fowler.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, April 4 (AP)—Top seeded favorites went down to defeat in the final round of the Puerto Rican Invitation Tennis Tournament today as Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., won the men's title and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, captured the women's crown.

Larsen retaining the crown he won last year, turned back Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia 12-10, 6-4, 6-4 and Miss Fry defeated her doubles partner, Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., 6-2, 6-3.

Losers Pull First Inning Triple Play

HOUSTON, Tex., April 4 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox surged to a four-hit, three-run eighth inning today to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 8-5, in a game featured by a first-inning triple play.

The Cardinals, who dropped their third straight exhibition game to the Sox, wiped out the side in the opening inning after Chicago had scored the first of their four runs off Tom Poholsky.

With Nelson Fox and Minnie Minoso breaking from second and first base on a hit-and-run play, Ferris Fain lined to third baseman Ray Jablonski. Jablonski threw to Red Schoendienst at second who relayed to first baseman Steve Bilko to complete the triple play.

10 Dangerous Drivers To Look Out For

Are the most dangerous automobile drivers those that zip along at 80 or 90 miles an hour? Not necessarily, according to L. M. Van Noppen, vice president of a large finance company. Van Noppen's men supervise 30,000,000 miles of auto travel every year. They clock the every day driver as well as the Sunday variety.

Van Noppen has come out with a report on what he calls "roadbirds." He says there are dozens of these "birds" who ought to be avoided. They are the ones who bring the ambulance screaming.

He has listed 10 drivers to look out for. First, there is the guy who thinks the definition of a split second is the time between the change of the light and the honk of the horn behind. He's a "hornblower." Then there is the "creeping headstart." The driver who lets the clutch take over and begins crawling ahead while the light still is red.

The "bull-headed crasher." That is the driver who jams into the line of traffic, forcing other drivers to stop, and maybe knocks fenders or possibly racks up an innocent street-crosser. The "red-nosed road runner." He's easy to spot. He has stopped at too many gin mills. Good idea to stay behind him.

The "tunnel-eyed whizzer." The guy who can see only straight ahead. He makes a fast pass at every crossroad without looking. The "bright-eyed blinder." Every sensible driver recognizes this fellow. The "compulsive passer." The man who, on the final count, doesn't live very long. He passes everything on the road. The "fence sitter." The guy who doesn't know where he is going or how he is going to get there, but stops in the middle of traffic to ask his spouse, or look for road signs.

The "wood-headed scene watcher." The bird who has to look for native birds or a rare bush under a tree—while driving.

And finally, the "large-mouth jughead." That would be the "hot-rod," so called.

But, at that, let's cut out that speeding.

These Days

"Chopping Block" Assignment

Senator Karl Mundt sure got himself what he calls a "chopping block" assignment when he stepped into the investigation as to who used rough language on whom between the McCarthy staff and the Stevens staff. The search for a favorably known lawyer of even seeming impartiality has been difficult because who wants to run an inquiry into childishness? The first lists of lawyers contained truly distinguished names, but each turned down the assignment. A counsel, Samuel Sears, has now been found who is willing to bring this dispute to a conclusion.

Mundt, who has been in the thick of it all, in his weekly report to his constituents, summarizes his conclusions as follows:

". . . (1) Involved here is no high crime against the government like treason; no allegations of disloyalty against any of the parties concerned; no acts of corruption punishable by law. Yet, neither the deep freeze and mink coat disclosures; the charges of graft in the procurement and use of government oil tankers; the five per cent commission agents; or the gift of American monetary plates to the Communists (in all of which investigations I participated) remotely rivaled the current affair in the attention being devoted by the newspapers and the radio. Only the Hiss case (in which I also served as acting chairman)—exceeded this one in news coverage and editorial interest. (2) Involved here at worst are misconduct and misrepresentation by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both but unless perjury is subsequently committed in sworn testimony before our committee no crime punishable by law is now charged or indicated. (3) Involved here at best are misunderstandings and mistakes by one or more individuals connected with the Army or the Senate committee or both which have interfered with the orderly work of a growing number of officials both in the Army and in Congress."

Although Senator Mundt makes the point that no matter what was said among the various gentlemen involved in this controversy, no one actually yielded to pressure or blackmail, the fact is that the investigations have been stopped. In effect, all the members of the committee, including Senator Joe McCarthy, have yielded to the pressure that the McCarthy investigations into the infiltration of government departments by Communists be stopped. They have stopped.

This is undoubtedly satisfactory to those who object to investigations, particularly of themselves and their friends. Perhaps their hope is that McCarthy may be thwarted altogether, and that the investigations will not proceed.

In introducing this discussion in his weekly report, Senator Mundt said:

Whether it is because of the great degree to which global communism has affected all our lives, or because of the controversial nature of McCarthy's operations, or because so many Americans have had relatives in the Army these past 20 years—or for some as yet undisclosed reason or cause—it is still difficult to understand the almost feverish interest of reporters and publications in our deliberations."

The interest is normal. It is not in the incident of the Cohn-Adams discussions. It is not in the harassed David Schine. It is in Joe McCarthy. Joe is what in radio they call a controversial person—one whose every word and action starts a controversy. It is true about anyone who comes near him. For instance, William F. Buckley Jr. writes a book on "McCarthy and His Enemies," whereupon the Women's National Republican Club of New York withdraws an invitation for him to address them.

Apparently in this free land, orthodoxy requires non-association with McCarthy, although I do recall the liberals complaining that McCarthy was guilty of imposing conformity.

Often controversies are over nothing particularly important, like, for instance, that one which seems to burn in some men's souls as to whether Bacon or someone else wrote Shakespeare because Shakespeare could not have written what he did write all by himself. What difference does it really make? Or, it is like the theologians who grow furious over the years of Joshua, some saying, as though they really knew, that he lived 200 years before Moses, and that therefore he could not have succeeded Moses, who might not have existed anyhow.

Joe McCarthy just is controversial and everything he does excites interest, enthusiasm and anger. And the reporters thrive on it, whether it is important or only adolescent.

Back Seat Drivers Can Relax

U. S. Pledged To United Military Action In Indochina

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

The news from Indochina only increases the importance of the commitment the President and Secretary Dulles publicly made to the French government a week ago.

Although neither the Congress nor the country seems to realize it, America now stands publicly committed to united military action to win the Indochina War, if this becomes necessary. "United action" was the milder phrase that Secretary Dulles used in his Overseas Press Club speech. But his warning that this "united action" might "involve serious risks" showed plainly what he meant.

This interpretation of Dulles was in turn supported by the way the President handled the problem at his press conference. And this interpretation has been given by the State Department, in reply to the anxious official inquiries made by the British and French.

Why, first of all, did Secretary Dulles feel forced to offer this enormously important and far-reaching commitment at this time? Some observers, including these reporters, have been warning that such a step would be necessary for many weeks. But until very recently, the State Department did not share this unpleasing view of the situation.

Answer Relatively Simple

The answer to the riddle is rather simple. Public men rarely do immensely disagreeable things until they have to. When General Navarre took command in Indochina, he produced the Navarre plan, which was "a plan for victory." Although the evidence was to the contrary, the State and Defense Departments kept hoping against hope that the Navarre plan might work after all. That phase only ended when General Paul Ely came to Washington for his recent talks with President Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

General Ely had just been to Indochina to inspect the situation on behalf of Defense chiefs of staff. He had come back via Paris, where he had talked with the leaders of his government. He brought the word to our government that there was no hope of victory in Indochina, at least with the means now at the disposal of the French command there. In these circumstances, he stated that French policy must be to secure a negotiated settlement at all costs.

There is no fighting line in Indochina as there was in Korea. The enemy is everywhere, and if the French withdraw, the Communist forces will enjoy absolute predominance. Thus any local "negotiated settlement" must surely lead — and lead rather rapidly—to a final total Communist victory in Indochina, with all its catastrophic consequences throughout Asia.

The message of Gen. Ely was certainly highly unwelcome to an administration that had been hoping to luck through in Indochina, at least until the fall elections. But the facts now had to be faced.

Dulles, Radford Deserve Credit

Those who deserve the very high credit for seeing that the facts were squarely faced are Secretary Dulles and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Arthur Radford. They were the team whose rock-like insistence on action to save Indochina finally won the day in a difficult and agonizing debate among our policy makers. They were firm. The President was with them. So the Dulles speech was made.

The second question to be asked, therefore, is whether the Dulles speech inevitably means future American involvement in another Asian war. Obviously, it may mean just this, if the French cannot win with the means they now have, and will not carry on the war without hope of victory. But it does not necessarily mean this.

Here the key fact is something not as yet known to the public. At Berlin, Secretary Dulles had several most significant private and informal talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov. Dulles took the opportunity of these talks to give Molotov a most solemn warning on the subject of Indo-China. In effect he said that war was the very last thing the United States wanted, but that, in the last analysis, he feared we should have to fight rather than see Indo-China absorbed by the Communist empire.

A possible, indeed a probable result of these warnings has already been seen in Peking. In a deeply meaningful speech made some weeks ago, Chen Yun, a member of the Chinese Politburo, hinted that it might be necessary to abandon the Indochinese Communists to their fate, in order to keep the peace in Asia. In the light of this speech by Chen Yun, it seems possible that the great offensive against Dien Phu was ordered by the Indochinese Communists as a last, desperate effort to win the war before their friends betrayed them.

If such a betrayal is being considered by the Chinese and Russians, the Dulles speech will make the case for it much stronger. By the same token, the Dulles speech has cut the grounds from under the growing group of appeasers in Paris.

By his bold stroke, Dulles has completely altered the outlook for the coming conference at Geneva, which had been so desperately disheartening until he spoke out. If we are not too rigid on our side, there is an off-chance that Geneva will produce an acceptable solution of the Indochinese problem. If the Russians and Chinese refuse after all to cease their support of the Communists in Indochina, a French surrender of Indochina will still be unlikely. But then the practical meaning of "united action" will have to be spelled out.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Begin to understand the psychology of the famous financier who took a yearly trip into the Grand Canyon.

He told me it made him regard humility as the sixth sense. About the third of the chuteward safari he felt as useless as painting on china.

About half-way into the tourist trap he was sure he didn't mean any more than a chirp in an omelet. And all the way down he decided to turn as square as city blocks.

He commuted on the Bright Angel Trail featuring Jacob's Ladder and other perpindicular toeholds. But the Bright Angel is a bowling alley compared to the Kaibab. That twists like a parade on a circular stairway.

We've been down both to qualify for a driver's license on a mule. Neither one of the bottomless boulevards means a jigger alongside the Thunder River Trail. When you're on that you could use another trail alongside.

The Thunder River Trail is just a wrinkle in the rocks. We asked a veteran downhill guide how he rated the Thunder River Detour. He said, "Keep going until it scares me."

We asked if he turned back. He said, "Nope, I blindfold myself."

How about getting to one of those turns where there's nothing around the corner. He said, "Then I blindfold the mule."

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Apoplexy is unpredictable. In some instances, it occurs so rapidly the individual falls and becomes unconscious while walking down the street. Others awaken in the morning and do not realize that one side of the body is paralyzed until they try to get out of bed. Here, little can be done along the line of prevention.

On the other hand, some strokes are preceded by warning signals. These signs include weakness and numbness of arms and legs, transient attacks of difficulty in speaking, visual disorders, loss of memory, vomiting, or headache. When such symptoms are recognized as omens of impending stroke, much can be done to delay the disorder from developing or to prevent it.

Last year, Dr. Miller Fisher, of Montreal, reported several examples in the Canadian Medical Association journal. One was a 58-year-old man who had suffered at least 500 transient attacks of numbness around the mouth and of the left thumb over a period of two months before the stroke: these episodes lasted two minutes and appeared as often as eight times a day.

A woman was awakened with paralysis of the left arm, leg, and left side of the face, from which she recovered in 20 minutes. During the next four days, she had 50 similar attacks and, on the fifth day, the real McCoy. The stroke of a 66-year-old man was preceded by three bouts of blindness in the right eye and loss of feeling in the left hand. An 84-year-oldster awakened in a confused and disoriented state, which continued for a week and was followed by the more common symptoms of apoplexy. Another suffered from insomnia and felt depressed.

Dr. Fisher also cited an example of the benefits derived from taking cognizance of warning signals. A 70-year-old woman encountered transient attacks of numbness, weakness, and vomiting over a period of five to six months. Now and then she lost "all power out of her body." The right hand and occasionally the right side of the face became numb and she complained of a "peculiar, terrible sensation in her head."

The physician recognized that a clot had formed in one of the arteries near the base of the brain. Heparin and dicumarol were administered to prevent the clot from extending and almost immediately, symptoms disappeared. When the drugs were discontinued numbness returned, vision became blurred, and speech was slurred. She felt weak all over. The drugs were started again but before they had a chance to reach their maximum effect, temporary paralysis of all the extremities occurred along with loss of the ability to swallow, speak, or see. Within two weeks strength, vision, and speech returned to normal.

SCARLIKE GROWTHS

T. V. writes: Can keloids turn into cancer?

REPLY

No. These disfiguring lesions, which occur after burns, wounds, or surgery, are treated via X-ray, radium, or surgery.

MUSCLE INVOLVEMENT

Mrs. S. M. writes: 1. Is there a possible connection between muscular dystrophy and trichinosis, since both affect the muscles? 2. When worms get into the muscles and stay there, do they cause the same type of weakness as in muscular dystrophy?

REPLY

1. Trichinosis follows invasion of the muscles by a parasite, whereas the cause of muscular dystrophy is unknown. In the latter condition, weakness and wasting of the muscles occur throughout the body.

2. In trichinosis, muscle involvement is the end of the road for the parasite, and after the reaction to the invasion subsides the individual is comfortable.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Charley Grimm is equally renowned as a big league baseball manager and as a left-handed banjo player. He was acting in the former capacity in Chicago a few seasons ago with no conspicuous success. In fact, his Cubs were floundering in last place, when one day a scout rushed into the clubhouse in great excitement to report, "Charley, I just saw a kid in a sandlot game fan 27 batters in a row. He had such baffling curves and blinding speed that nobody even got a foul off him till two were out in the ninth. Should I sign him up?" "You're balmy," Grimm told him, strumming idly on his banjo. "It's hitters we need right now. Sign the fellow who got the foul off him."

George Jean Nathan came back from a tryout in a summer theater declaring, "Here's a new playwright who seems bent on making crime pay." "Writing murder mysteries?" inquired Dick Watts. "No, drawing room comedies," corrected Nathan, "but he's murdering the English language."

Senate Has Checked Into McCarthy Or His Charges On Four Occasions

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Though most people have forgotten it, the Senate of the United States has now investigated Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy or his charges four times, and each time he has been able one way or other to squirm out or jump to a new subject. Judging by the way Senator Mundt of South Dakota picked the supposedly neutral counsel to investigate the current McCarthy-Army probe, he should be able to wiggle out of the fifth.

The four previous probes involving McCarthy and his charges were:

1. The Malmedy Massacre—in which McCarthy charged the U. S. Army has tortured German war criminals found guilty of murdering defenseless American prisoners in cold blood. The charge was investigated by gentle, fair-minded Sen. Ray Baldwin, Connecticut Republican, who found McCarthy completely wrong. Whereupon McCarthy angrily stomped out of the hearings, denouncing Baldwin's findings as a "deliberate and clever attempt to whitewash the American military," and charging that Baldwin himself was "criminally responsible." In the end, the disillusioned Baldwin wearily resigned to become a judge in Connecticut.

2. State Department Communism — Maryland's veteran Sen. Millard Tydings, conservative Democrat, was the next to take on McCarthy. Tydings investigated McCarthy's charges that there were 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department and branded the story a "fraud and a hoax." Last month Gen. Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff in Europe and now undersecretary of state, told a congressional committee under oath that not one Communist had been found in the State Department. Meanwhile, McCarthy had again raised the cry of whitewash and carried the fight to Tydings' home state, helping to defeat him for re-election.

3. Maryland Election — McCarthy's campaign against Tydings was so dirty that the Senate Elections Committee investigated and referred serious charges to the Justice Department. But McCarthy jumped on two of the investigating senators, both Republicans—Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Robert Hendrickson of New Jersey—accusing them of being "prejudiced" and lacking a "background of legal training." In the end, one of the lesser campaign workers, Jon Jonkel, took the rap for the dirty campaign, and McCarthy, off the hook, cheerily announced: "I think the Maryland election was one of the cleanest campaigns in the country."

Later Attorney General Brownell let the Statute of Limitations run on any prosecution, and President Eisenhower appointed Robert E. Lee, one of those named in the Maryland probe, to the important post of FCC Commissioner.

4. McCarthy's Finances — The most devastating charges against McCarthy were brought up by Sen. William Benton, Connecticut Democrat, who drew up a 12-point indictment accusing McCarthy of unethical and dishonest conduct. McCarthy never answered the charges but he bombarded the Senate Elections Committee investigating him with fiery epithets.

He charged that the committee was engaged in an effort to "discredit and destroy any man who fights Communist subversion," suggested that "several United States senators have known Communists on their staffs," and set his own staff loose on the trail of one of the investigating senators. McCarthy also challenged Benton to repeat his charges without senatorial immunity, which Benton did. McCarthy sued, but recently dropped his libel suit.

Reluctant Senators

With this past history in mind, no senator was anxious to take on the Army-McCarthy probe. The White House originally sent word to Republican leaders that the Senate Armed Services Committee should investigate the Army-McCarthy wrangle. But this was the last thing Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee, wanted. He is up against a heavy Boston Irish vote in his re-election campaign this year, and he remembered how Senator Lodge, another Republican from Massachusetts, was defeated after he served on the Tydings Committee investigating McCarthy-State Department charges. So Saltonstall ducked.

As a result, the GOP leaders took McCarthy's own suggestion—namely, that he step aside as chairman and let the McCarthy Committee investigate McCarthy.

Shortly thereafter came attempts to drop the whole probe. One of McCarthy's close friends on the committee, Sen. Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, urged behind closed doors that McCarthy's controversial chief counsel, Roy Cohn, and Army Counselor John Adams be suspended. This would have led to sidestepping the investigation, but was rejected by everyone, including McCarthy, who has subsequently changed his mind.

More recently he has been trying to head off a showdown hearing, and is tossing the whole controversy off as a Cohn-Adams affair.

Meanwhile, two dozen names were tossed into a hat and juggled around before the McCarthy Committee finally pulled out Samuel B. Sears of Boston to referee the Army-McCarthy controversy. Actually, Mr. Sears suggested himself for the job and the harassed temporary chairman, Sen. Mundt, reaching Sears by phone in Dallas where he was on a business trip, asked him to come to Washington for consultation.

Meanwhile, the Senate Investigating Committee has received seven copies of the unabridged Army report on the McCarthy-Cohn-Schine-Adams affair, including violent language used by both Cohn and McCarthy. The committee has also asked the Army inspector general for its report on whether McCarthy's ex-investigator, Pvt. David Schine, got favored Army treatment as a result of pressure from McCarthy and Cohn.

Business Works In Cycles

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass—It is sad that men of equal experience and intelligence so totally disagree as to the outlook for 1954. I am one of few who believe that at least the first half of the year will be fairly good.

Are We As We Think?

Business is partly, but not wholly, a psychological affair. Constructive thinking aids both business health and our physical health. Too many people are optimistic or pessimistic due to their physical condition, to the newspaper headlines, and to what radio commentators say. But these men may guess at their conclusions.

Most people think that stocks go up when there are more buyers than sellers, and go down when there are more sellers than buyers. This is a totally wrong belief, as there can never be a seller without a buyer nor a buyer without a seller. Stocks go up when people are more impatient to buy than to sell; and stocks go down when people are more impatient to sell than to buy. The same principle applies to general business, real estate sales, and even wages. The impatience to buy, or to sell, determines prices. Impatience to buy, followed by impatience to sell, followed again by impatience to buy, causes business cycles.

How To Measure Impatience

No one as yet has discovered how to measure mass impatience. Photographers claim they can do it by photographing and studying the faces of the people on the streets, or in stores, or at public gatherings. Physicians claim they can measure the relative impatience of their "patients" who call upon them. The Dow-Jones theorists think they can determine the relative impatience of people by a study of their charts; but I have never found any chartists who became rich by such a study! Statisticians hope that the mechanical brains being developed by the International Business Machines Corporation, or Remington Rand, or National Cash Register Company will solve the problem. I, however, have more faith in the work of Dr. Ernest Furchtgott, professor of phychology, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.

Our brains, hearts, and other organs are constantly sending out electrical waves; perhaps our entire body is sending out such waves. It is entirely possible that our impatience, ambition, self-control, worries, courage, and even spiritual factors (which are forces that make for prosperity or depressions) could be ascertained by studying the electric waves or chemical compounds which our skin is constantly throwing off. If it is possible to diagnose individuals indvidually, we should be able to diagnose a community en masse. I forecast this will be done some day, first analyzing the Ph of the sputum of the group.

A Final Thought

Television broadcasting stations are now sending waves into our homes. By studying the faces of speakers, when unconsciously in repose, it may be possible to know their character and attitude toward life. This was well illustrated by Senator Estes Kefauver's crime hearings which were shown two years ago on television. Now let us assume that a leading broadcasting station temporarily shuts down daily for two minutes and that every possible public group becomes a sending station and broadcasts its own bodily waves, greatly amplified in power. These could be collected by this broadcasting station, which could temporarily become a receiving station. If these mass waves can be interpreted, it should be possible to forecast business conditions with accuracy, barring an unforeseen catastrophe.

If the combined analyses of all sections showed the nation to be frightened and impatient for security only, then a business decline may safely be forecast. So long, however, as these people are throwing off optimistic waves or normal skin reactions, then continued prosperity can be assured. All authorities could then agree as to the future. From the poll of 970 leading newspaper publishers which we took in December, we concluded that less than five per cent of the people were then discouraged. Hence, we cannot now be pessimistic about 1954.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 4—(INS)—Another lawsuit for Paul Gregory in connection with "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." Dick Powell first sued Gregory for cutting off his profits as director and taking his name off the program in favor of Charles Laughton.

Now, Wendell Corey is filing suit, claiming Gregory failed to keep a contract. Cory will say that he was promised the Henry Fonda role in the road company of "Caine Mutiny," and on the strength of this he postponed two commitments, one at Paramount and one at Republic, totaling $100,000.

Just a few days ago Wendell received word that Gregory wouldn't use him because, while waiting Wendell was in "Sabrina Fair." Believe me, this is going to be a fight to the finish.

Attractive Ann Robinson, one of the nicest girls in our town, knows it pays to be born lucky. She had an interview with Jack Webb, and quicker than it takes to say dum-dee-dum-dum, he recommended her for the role of the police woman in his movie, "Dragnet."

Ann was so excited she telephoned her mother and asked her to pray that she would be given the part. Well, I can tell her she's as good as in, because Jack tells me he likes her.

Ann was in "War Of The Worlds," and is redheaded, tall, and—naturally—pretty. And, well, if she gets this, she'll surely be on her way!

This is for sure: Ernest Hemingway is one author who says what he thinks he thinks, and this time he says he's going to keep a very close eye on the movie version of "Old Man Of The Sea." He hasn't been too happy in the past the way his stories have been treated on the screen.

What's more, he's got producer Leland Hayward to agree with him, even if it means gambling on the general popularity of the end result. In other and plainer words, Leland has agreed to film the story as closely as possible the way Hemingway originally wrote it.

Already the author has selected the young Cuban boy who will appear in the film with Spencer Tracy. Hemingway, himself a famous fisherman, will do the exciting fishing scenes off the coast of Peru next summer.

Bing Crosby, who in my memory has never given a big party, has taken over the entire Mocambo April 12 for a farewell to Danny Kaye, who goes on a world tour.

It will be a costume party with each guest dressed as his favorite international character. Can't you just see the dozens of King Farouks, Aly Khans, Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs., and Elsa Maxwells!

Natalie Wood leads a charmed life. The studio car that takes her to Republic Studio for her TV show, had a head on collision and was completely demolished. Natalie walked away from the wreck without a scratch.

Corinne Calvet, none the worse from her bout with sleeping pills, at the Mocambo with Hyatt Dehn.

Ernest Lehman, who scripted "Sabrina Fair" and "Executive Suite," will be a father for the second time come October.

Many family parties as Chasen's after the confirmation ceremonies at the Church of the Good Shepherd, at which James Francis Cardinal McIntyre officiated.

Two of the children of Charles Correll (he's Andy of "Amos and Andy") were at dinner with their parents. Alan Reed's youngest, Kit, also had dinner with his father and mother and brothers. Other motion picture children confirmed were Patrick Farrow, Timmy Considine, Nancy Sinatra, Jr., Danny Thomas' little girl, Mary Morrison's boy, and John Beck's son.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Are your nerves on edge? Are you a bundle of nerves? Are you nervous as a cat?

You may be sure that if one of those cliches describes you, it is as obvious as though your slip were showing. Nervousness exhibits itself in may a small way, in many an unbecoming mannerism.

How many times a day do you glance at your watch, even though you are perfectly aware of the hour? How many times—during a conversation—do you cross and recross your legs, slip your shoe off and on at the heel, or peel bits of polish from your fingernails? Often? Then, lady, it's time to unwind!

Danger Signs

Nature gives you danger signals, an ache or a pain, when you are catching a cold or coming down with measles. She signals tension or mental fatigue in a similar manner.

You may indicate tension through unconscious facial expressions—wrinkling your forehead, grimacing, or biting your lips. Just habits, you say? Yes, nervous habits!

A multitude of useless motions and futile gestures like these may hint that you are tense: twisting your ring; drumming your fingers on a table or the arm of a chair; pulling out your compact every few moments for self-appraisal; winding a lock of hair around your finger. Interspersing your speech with "ahs" and "ers."

You may try to explain away these oft-repeated symptoms of tension by saying that they recur only when you are bored. But, why are you bored? Is it because your companions or your surroundings are really dull or is it honestly because you aren't relaxed enough to appreciate and enjoy them?

Overcoming Tension

To recognize the manifestations of tension for what they are is to win half the battle in destroying them. When any of these mannerisms take hold, it is time to remind yourself to RELAX. Take it easy. Take more interest in passing talk and activity.

You can't be tense and charming at the same time. Eliminate the nervous gestures that reveal your tension by overcoming the tension itself . . . you will have more energy, more vitality, more charm.

Tomorrow—Footwork for Spring.

Cave Society Elects Teacher

Rev. Bro. Nicholas, a teacher at LaSalle High School here, was elected first vice president of the National Speleological Society Saturday at the national convention being held in Pittsburgh. More than 300 delegates from all parts of the U. S. are in attendance.

New president of the organization is William Davies, Washington geologist, who was here week before last with the canal hiking party headed by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. Davies has been on numerous cave exploring trips to the Cumberland area. Garrett County and nearby West Virginia, and helped to map the Twigg Cave on Williams Road.

Howard Sloan, New York, was elected treasurer and Rhoda Coulson, Alexandria, Va., secretary, of the national group.

Next year's convention will be held at Natural Bridge, Va., but Davies and Brother Nicholas hope to have the interim meeting of all officers and the national board of directors held in Cumberland.

The award was presented during the convention of the Maryland Scholastic Press Association at St. John's College.

Dinah Brown of Glen Burnie High School took second place in the MPA contests and Betty Cooper of Eastern High in Baltimore, third.

The Cumberland Times-News trophy was won by Glen Burnie High on most points in the senior high writing tournament.

The Fort Hill Sentinel won the Baltimore City College Quill and Scroll trophy for senior high newspapers.

Dudey Moore Gives Trophy To Senior Star

Dukes Coach Defends Modern Athletes; 170 Attend Annual Dinner

Robert Brant, center of the Fort Hill High School Sentinels, won the fifteenth Knights of Columbus Sportsmanship Award at the annual dinner honoring candidates from the four Greater Cumberland high schools last night at the K. of C. Hall.

The trophy, a gold wrist watch, offered by Cumberland Council No. 586, was presented to Brant, a senior, by Donald "Dudey" Moore, head coach of Duquesne University's basketball team which went to the finals in the recent National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Brant became the fourth Fort Hill player to earn the award since it was instituted in 1940. Milford Dean was the last Fort Hill winner in 1947.

Eight Get Basketballs

Robert "Red" Brown, head basketball coach at West Virginia University, presented miniature gold basketballs to the eight nominees for the Sportsmanship Award, namely, Brant and Eugene Weber, of Fort Hill; David Steele and Dick Rank, Allegany; Eddie Powelson and Frederick "Fritz" Showers, Ridgeley, and Dennis Shuck and Bobby Christ, LaSalle.

The winner of the Sportsmanship Award was announced by David Kauffman, Cumberland attorney and chairman of the awards committee, who pointed out that it was a rather difficult job to select a winner from such a topnotch group of candidates and added that "sportsmanship is an intangible part of your life."

William V. Keegan, grand knight of Cumberland council, greeted the 170 guests, and introduced Mayor Roy Eves, Brother Gregory Mutien, of Orange, N. J., former director of athletics at LaSalle High School, this city; John Somma, of Staten Island, N. Y., formerly of Ridgeley, W. Va., and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, all of whom occupied places at the main table.

Father Martin Makes Hit

The Rev. John Sinnott Martin, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Catholic Church, Baltimore, made a hit as toastmaster with his witty remarks and his funny stories. Father Martin, a native of Fairmont, W. Va., told of the days when he played basketball in Oakland when the "fouls were called on the visiting teams and the ladies didn't come to the games because of the bad language that was used."

Telegrams from past winners of the award, who were unable to attend, were read by Keegan. Bobby Stakem, LaSalle's 1943 winner and Marty Mullaney, LaSalle player who copped the 1953 trophy, were present.

Defends Modern Athlete

In his talk, Coach "Dudey" Moore defended the modern athlete as "vastly superior" to the court stars of bygone days. The Duquesne mentor admitted that he couldn't make the "Iron Dukes" team and neither could many of the other stars turned out in the past at the Pittsburgh school by Coach "Chick" Davies, for whom Moore played.

"The kids today are much taller and they shoot much better," Moore declared. Speaking of defense, "Dudey" stated that there are certain players we have no defense for and he referred to "Red" Brown having a player of that type next season. He was referring to "Hot" Rod Hundley, who set things afire as a freshman at West Virginia the past season.

Moore emphasized that coaches have a tremendous responsibility. "A coach has to know more than the game itself," he declared. "He has to learn the personality of each boy. Each boy must be handled differently and a coach must employ different types of psychology."

TV Creates New Coaches

The speaker stated that coaches have to defend themselves against people who are not familiar with the game. He added that television is a wonderful thing but it creates "new coaches" and that makes it difficult for the basketball mentor.

Moore spoke of his role as honorary coach of the College All-Stars in their eight games with the Globetrotters, and was loud in his praise, especially of Gene Shue, the University of Maryland ace, Selvy, Rosenthal, Hagan and Ramsey, also of the college all-stars.

In conclusion, the Duquesne coach stated that the local K. of C. council was doing a wonderful thing in "recognizing true sportsmanship" and told parents present that "boys learn more in competitive athletics than in any other field—learn lessons true to life."

Robert "Red" Brown, W.V.U. coach, said he was glad to sit near "Dudey" Moore so he could rub up against the Duquesne menter and take some of his luck back to Morgantown. The W.V.U. redhead spoke of the wave of bad sportsmanship in the country and added that it was about time somebody

MEXICO CITY, April 4 (AP) — Pancho Gonzales won the Professional Tennis Tournament here today, beating Frank Sedgman 9-7, 6-4.

In the doubles, with promoter Jack Kramer and Sedgman playing Gonzales and Pancho Segura, the latter pair won 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

By LOU BLACK

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 4 (AP) — With an eye on the Pan-American Games at Mexico next year, Ohio State's great swimming trio of Ford Konno, Yoshi Oyakawa and Dick Cleveland headed back to school today with six of 11 individual National AAU indoor titles among them.

Barring the unexpected, the trio of Hawaiians are a cinch to make the team, according to the AAU swimming officials who expressed joy over what they saw here during the three day meet which ended last night.

Konno Scores Triple

The 21-year-old, 145-pound Konno was the outstanding performer, winning the 220 and 440-yard and the 1,500-meter freestyle races for the championship's only triple, the meet's medal and repeated his triumph of two years ago.

Olympic champion Oyakawa scored a double by capturing the 100 and 150-yard backstroke, and Cleveland won a terrific 100-yard freestyle test against the toughest competition in the long history of this meet.

The meet's only other double was registered by Skippy Browning of Pensacola, Fla., Navy Base, who won the one and three meter driving events.

Other individual victors were Dick Fadgen, an 18-year-old student at La Salle Academy, Providence, R.I., the 220-yard breaststroke; Jack Wardrop, Michigan star from Scotland, the 400-yard individual medley and Dave Hawkins, the Harvard ace from Australia, the 100-yard butterfly.

Browning and Fadgen would be eligible to compete for this country in the Pan-American games expected to take place in mid-March, 1955. The last time this event was held was five years ago at Buenos Aires as a sort of preview for the Olympics. Our team will be selected on the performance of candidates here and in the outdoor AAU meet this summer.

World Mark Lowered

Only one world record was lowered during the meet, and it wasn't in a scheduled event. Konno, while shooting for the 440-yard freestyle title last night, raced the 400 meters in 4:26.7, beating ex-Yale John Marshall's 4:26.9 registered two years ago.

Birmingham Tops Phillies In 2-1 Duel

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4 (AP) — Jack Urban, a rookie pitcher just out of the Army, limited the Philadelphia Phillies to four hits today as Birmingham of the Southern Association edged the National Leaguers in the ninth inning, 2-1.

Leftfielder Jim Engelman scored the Barons' winning run when Joe Polich singled off second baseman Gran Hamner's glove. Engelman had singled, and advanced to third on an error by losing pitcher Jack Sanford after an intentional walk. Shortstop Ted Kazanski of the Phillies doubled in the eighth inning to extend his hitting string to 11 games.

Court Star's Spinal Cord Is Severed

Little Hope Is Held For Junius Kellogg

PINE BLUFF, Ark., April 4 (AP)—The attending physician for Junius Kellogg held little hope tonight for recovery of the former Manhattan College basketball star who was among five Negro professional basketball players injured in a car wreck near here.

The doctor, who withheld use of his name, said Kellogg suffered a dislocated vertebra in his neck and his spinal cord was severed.

The physician said Kellogg is paralyzed with the exception of slight movement in one arm. The doctor said Kellogg's conditions is "not good" and he held little hope for the player's recovery.

Kellogg and Boyd Buie, who received a hip injury, are members of the Harlem Globetrotters B team. Buie also is hospitalized.

Three other players, who suffered minor injuries, were released from the hospital today.

The five players were en route to Marianna, Ark., Friday night for an exhibition game when their car blew a tire and overturned about 16 miles north of here.

It was Kellogg's admission to New York Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan in 1951 that he had been asked to shave points in a college game which led to an investigation of wholesale gambling involving a number of top college basketball players.

Agganis Is Star As Bosox Win

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4 (AP)—First baseman Harry Agganis celebrated his promotion to the Boston Red Sox by driving in two runs to give the American Leaguers a 3-2 victory over Atlanta of the Southern Association today before 4,822 fans.

Trailing 2-1 going into the eighth inning, the Red Sox set the stage for Agganis when pitcher Leo Kiely walked and advanced to third on Billy Goodman's double to left. Charlie Maxwell, pinch-hitting was purposely passed. Agganis hit a 3-2 pitch cleanly to right field to send the tying and winning runs across the plate.

Bobby Locke Smiles After Winning $980

CAIRO, April 4 (AP)—South Africa's Bobby Locke won the Egyptian Open championship by 15 strokes today with a 72-hole score of 274 after a final round 70.

Dai Rees of Wales was second with 289. Locke played his usual unemotional golf in turning in a 14 under par card for four rounds. The only time he smiled during the three-day tourney was when he picked up the winner's check for 350 pounds ($980).

Chicago Cubs Trim Orioles

Heard Gets Lacing As Relief Pitcher

MOBILE, Ala., April 4 (AP)-Bruce Edwards capped a seven-run seventh inning rally with a pinch homer today as the Chicago Cubs romped to a 10-2 baseball exhibition triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Edwards' roundtripper, a 355-foot shot over the left field fence, came off the slants of rookie Jehosie Heard. The 29-year-old southpaw, up from Portland of the Pacific Coast League, gave up six hits in the disastrous seventh.

Appearing in relief of starter Vern Bickford, Heard ran into trouble after two Cubs were out. Luis Marquez singled, and Don Robertson doubled before Ransom Jackson singled.

Gene Baker smacked a double while Hal Meek laced a two-run scoring single to set the stage for Edwards' circuit blast.

Heard finished the game, giving up half of the 12-hits surrendered to the Cubs who evened their spring series with the Orioles at 7-7.

Bickford, attempting a comeback following his trade by the Milwaukee Braves, gave up three runs and six hits before handing over the pitching chores to Heard in the seventh.

The Reds bunched four of their 15 hits, including Post's homer over the left field fence, to score five runs off Conrado Marrero in the fifth inning.

Losers Pull First Inning Triple Play

HOUSTON, Tex., April 4 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox surged to a four-hit, three-run eighth inning today to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 8-5, in a game featured by a first-inning triple play.

The Cardinals, who dropped their third straight exhibition game to the Sox, wiped out the side in the opening inning after Chicago had scored the first of their four runs off Tom Poholsky.

With Nelson Fox and Minnie Minoso breaking from second and first base on a hit-and-run play, Ferris Fain lined to third baseman Ray Jablonski. Jablonski threw to Red Schoendienst at second who relayed to first baseman Steve Bilko to complete the triple play.

The Ad Agency Language

In my researches on the curiously inventive (and, in some cases, remarkably expressive) language of the advertising industry, I have confined myself pretty well to Madison Avenue. But, of course, Madison Avenue isn't the whole story. You can find ad men all over the place — Chicago, Milwaukee and, naturally, Hollywood—and, while the general tenor of metaphor is the same, there are certain regional differences which I'm sure you students of language will find interesting.

John Crosby

In Hollywood, for instance, you will encounter the expression: "We were blown out of the tub" which means simply that the agency has lost a client or an account. When you want a junior account executive to handle detail work, you tell the personnel department: "Get a boy to carry the grips." There is a slightly larcenous practice out there (and elsewhere) concealing added charges in production fees which increases the agency take above the ordinary 15 per cent. This is known as "honking a live one." (The "live one" is a client with a fat wallet.) And when a guy fails to make a sale or land a new account, he is said to have "burnt off."

Out in Chicago they have an expression: "Keep your pores open on this one" which means don't do anything hasty. (And that, of course, is the general direction of almost all ad agency talk. The idea is for heaven's sake, be careful. Don't go rushing into anything.) And when you have finally decided the idea is definitely lousy, you "pull the chain on that one."

There is generally, in some of the later Madison Avenue patter, a note of pessimism, if not downright cynicism in their gropings with the spoken word. Take this one, for example, which is a very real example of Madison Avenue: "Let's roll some rocks and see what crawls out." Obviously the boys are not expecting much. In the old days, they used to "mother hen" an idea, or they'd say "Let's incubate this and see what hatches"—and this, with its intimations of maternity, was kind of sweet and touching. Now, they're rolling rocks and you know what crawls out from under those.

Of course, candor is something to be avoided at all costs in the advertising dodge which brought forth this remark from one of the boys, seeking guidance: "How shall we handle this? Do you want to keep anything back or do you want to make it an open door policy?" I don't know what the decision was here but I rather imagine that the "open door policy" didn't make it.

I have here one other example of Madison Avenue prose. I haven't any idea what it means: "I don't think we'll baby that agency any more. We'll just force feed them." As I say, I don't know what it means but I like the idea of an agency being force fed. It's high time.

From one of my spies in Chicago comes words that ad agency-ese is developing what he calls the triple-redundancy. This is the technique of saying the same thing over and over to make it sound more impressive. He swears he heard an account executive tell a client: "We'll send this letter to all physicians, doctors and MD's." The same man was overheard to get up at a meeting, thump the table and say: "We'll put our front foot forward."

To turn to other matters, April is upon us once more which means that I have the wanderlust again. During the next month I shall be exploring some old and new haunts in Paris, Cannes, Venice, Vienna and Seville.

During that time, a roster of very distinguished writers, thinkers and wits will be doing my work for me. Among the guest columnists who will take over—and I hope they're not all too bright—will be Bing Crosby, Robert E. Sherwood, Edward R. Murrow, Fred Allen, Goodman Ace, P. G. Wodehouse, Sloan Simpson, David Selznick, Richard Maney, Steve Allen, Herb Shriner, Peter Lind Hayes, Henry Morgan, Victor Borge, Abe Burrows, and Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding).

Take it away, man.

LURING A BAD MISTAKE

YOU have a chance, once in a while, to make a play which has for one of its main purposes the luring of a bad mistake by an opponent. You may do it by giving him a picture of the situation which is definitely different from the facts, or by merely making him select alternatives while utterly in the dark about the true situation. Sometimes a single play has a triple objective. First, it may work of itself and thereby assure your objective. Second, if it fails, it may induce a slip by one opponent. Third, even if he doesn't come through, his partner may then be tempted to help you.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

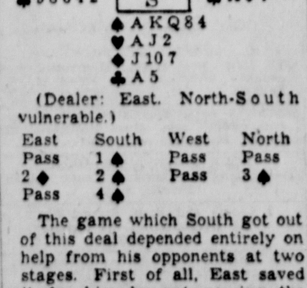

The game which South got out of this deal depended entirely on help from his opponents at two stages. First of all, East saved it for him by not passing the original 1-Spade, the reopening of 2-Diamonds giving him another chance. Later West came to his aid in the play.

When East put the discouraging 2 on the diamond A opening, West shifted to the club 4, bringing the 10, J and A. Three top spades cleared trumps and the diamond 10 was sent through to the Q. That made two tricks lost, and South saw the danger of one each in hearts and clubs. He needed help from the defense, and his throwing in of East with that diamond finesse, which could have saved his cause if it had worked, now gave that defender his opportunity to be kind.

East was not so geared up, however. If he had returned any club, two hearts could have been discarded on a club and a diamond. Seeing that, East returned a heart instead, the 5, which the Q won. Now, as it happened, a club return could beat the contract. West, however, didn't know that, so chose the heart 9, which brought the 10, K and A. The heart J, diamond 7 to the K, diamond 9 and 8 brought a discard of South's last club, and two spades completed the lucky game.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

After the club 8 lead to the Q and K, how should South try for his overbid 6-Spades?

Doug Ford And Marty Furgol Tied For Greensboro Lead

Playoff Set Today, Both Shoot 283's

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 4 (AP)—Doug Ford and Marty Furgol tied for top money in the $10,000 Greensboro Open Golf Tournament with one-under par 283 totals today and will meet in an 18-hole playoff tomorrow afternoon, the second in succession for Ford here.

Last spring Ford finished in a four-way tie, with Earl Stewart winning the playoff.

Top money is $2,000, with the runnerup getting $1,400. Furgol, a notorious front runner who usually falls off his fast early pace, reversed his usual formula today, licking par twice with 67-70 rounds over the 6,723-yard Starmount Forest Country Club course. Ford made it in 73-70.

They were only one stroke ahead of Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who was seeking his fifth Greensboro victory, and Bill Nary, Reno, Nev. Each got $900 in prize money.

Starting today's 36 holes, played in 50-degree temperature and biting wind, Ford, Snead and Julius Boros Southern Pines, N. C., were tied for the lead at 140. Furgol was down in a seven-way tie for 20th at 146.

Snead stayed in it until the final hole where an eagle three would have given him a tie but Sam was trapped with his second. Needing to hole out from the sand, he dropped the ball two feet from the pin and had to settle for a birdie.

Boros, meanwhile, shot himself out of the tournament with a closing 78, as did Bob Rosburg, young Chicago pro who had scrambled into the 54-hole lead by two shots with 211, only to drop off to 75. He ended with 286, tying Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, for fifth place.

Other finishers included Al Smith, Danville, Va., who shot a 292.

Bob Trice, Athletic starter, held the Pirates scoreless on one-hit until he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Cookie Stemple, who replaced Trice, gave up the two runs and was charged with the loss.

The shutout victory extended to 19 the consecutive scoreless innings Friend has pitched in exhibition games this spring.

Mathews Homers As Braves Score

Milwaukee Downs Brooklyn, 18 To 14

NASHVILLE, April 4 (AP) — Ed Mathews, baseball's home run king, hit his fifth homer in as many games as the Milwaukee Braves turned the tables on the Brooklyn Dodgers 18-14 in another of their three-hour Donneybrooks today. It was Milwaukee's fourth victory in seven games with the pennant winners.

The Dodgers got off to an 8-5 lead in four innings by pounding Bob Buhl, the Braves opening day pitcher. Billy Loes, the Dodger starter, also was hit hard.

Milwaukee took the lead by reaching Pete Wojey for four runs in the sixth and Clem Labine for five in the seventh. Meanwhile, Charlie Gorin held Brooklyn safe until the eighth when Carl Furillo hit a grand slam home run to make it a five-run inning. The Braves came back with four runs off Ed Roebuck in their half.

Jack Dittmer, fighting to regain the second base job, led Milwaukee's 18-hit attack with four blows.

Neuhaus Is Winner Over Argentine Heavy

DORTMUND, Germany, April 4 (AP) — European heavyweight champion Heinz Neuhaus won a bruising 10-round decision over hulking Edgardo Romero of Argentina tonight in a non-title contest before 8,000 fans.

Neuhaus, striving to gain prestige after a knockout loss last November to Nino Valdes of Cuba, never stopped swinging against the mammoth Argentinian, who outweighed him by 32 pounds. Neuhaus weighed 213 to Romero's 245.

Lakers Conquer Syracuse, 81-67

SYRACUSE, N.Y., April 4 (AP)—George Mikan dropped in 30 points tonight to pace the Minneapolis Lakers to a 81-67 victory over the Syracuse Nationals and a 2-1 lead in the final round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

A crowd of 8,719 saw big George break the game wide open in the third period with 13 points as the Lakers outscored the Nats 30-11 to go in the final quarter with a 14-point bulge. The fourth game of the best-of-seven series will be played at Syracuse Thursday.

Yanks Get Seven In 9th, Win 11-9

SAVANNAH, April 4 (AP) — The New York Yankees rallied to score seven runs after two out in the ninth inning today, gaining an 11-9 victory over the Savannah Indians of the class A South Atlantic League.

started a wave toward good sportsmanship. In behalf of the university and himself, Brown congratulated the K. of C. for the fine affair and said that the University appreciated the loyalty shown by the fans of this section. "We didn't have such a good season in basketball but we'll be back," he concluded.

Recalls "Bobby's" Kick

Herbert Armstrong, business manager of the Baltimore Orioles, recalled the days he officiated here for "Ike" Law's Cumberland Bulldogs football team and said it was the beginning of the sport in Maryland. He also told of the game in which he officiated that John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, now Fort Hill coach, drop-kicked a 55-yard field goal was Washington College in 1923, a record at that time. Speaking of sportsmanship, Herb stated that "it may be inherited and it also may be acquired." He stressed that something has happened in the state that will do more than anything to bring Maryland fans closer together — and that's Baltimore's new major league franchise.

Others making remarks were the four high school coaches, namely, Walter L. Bowers, Allegany; John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Fort Hill; Norman J. Geatz, Jr., LaSalle, and Chester Payne, Ridgeley; and Somerville Nicholson, who spoke briefly about the way the game was played when he was a player and coach.

Rev. Marius Elsener, OFM., Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, pronounced the invocation and benediction.

Potomac State To Host Kent State Tossers

Five PVC Contests On Tap This Week

Potomac State College will play its fifth and sixth games of the baseball season this weekend when it faces Kent State College of Kent, Ohio, in a two-game series Friday and Saturday at Keyser.

The Catamounts lost both ends of a doubleheader Saturday to the Concord College Mountain Lions of Athens, W. Va., at Stayman Field by scores of 3-0 and 8-7.

State won only one of four games played during the opening week of the campaign.

Frostburg State Teachers play a single game this week, meeting Shepherd College's Rams on Friday at Shepherdstown. The Bobcats dropped their opening game to Ohio Wesleyan last week.

Five Potomac Valley Conference games are on tap for this week.

Capon Bridge High plays at Romney High and Franklin High's Panthers meet the West Virginia School for the Deaf at Romney on Tuesday. Romney High hosts the Deaf School tossers, Wednesday, and Moorefield plays at Wardensville while Circleville visits Franklin in Friday tilts.

Keyser High opens its season Tuesday, facing Southern High of Oakland at Keyser. The teams play a return game at Oakland on Friday. Capon Bridge plays a non-conference game at Berkeley Springs on Friday.

Motorcyclist Wins His Bet But Gets Arrested

WAUKEGAN, Ill., April 4 (AP)—Walter Puckett won a bet and got himself arrested today for riding his motorcycle around an oval bar in a Waukegan tavern.

Puckett's ride on top of the bar ended abruptly, police said, when his machine struck and injured Mrs. Olean Roberts of Waukegan as she stepped out of a washroom. She was treated at a hospital and released.

Puckett, 22, won the bet he had made with a friend. But police charged him with "reckless driving inside a building" and released him on bond pending a hearing. Monday, April 5, 1954

Board Members

past and present, in Allegany County and in the other counties of the state."

The magistrates had voiced a specific objection to reimbursement of Supervisor of Assessments Somerville Nicholson and his assessors for their travel expenses.

Assessor Trip Necessary

Pointing out that "assessments of property cannot be made in the Court House and the State Tax Commission will not require local assessors to provide their own transportation without reimbursement," the commissioners said it has been the custom for the board to pay the supervisor and the assessors monthly allowances for the use of their cars. This, they said, is cheaper than the depreciation on a county-owned car.

As to out-of-state trips, the board members said, "the progressive counties of this state are invariably represented at meetings of the National Association of Assessors, not only by their supervisors but by assessors as well. Allegany County is one of the progressive counties of the state and has been represented. The present supervisor is a past president of the national association and his knowledge, experience and ability, particularly in handling industrial assessments, was thus acquired.

The letter, signed by William H. Lemmert, board president, and Commissioners James Holmes and James Orr, declared in part:

"There is one individual trip to the State Roads Commission office in Baltimore which might now be explained. This trip on October 28, 1953 involved a total expenditure of $132.50 for five persons for two days.

"This meeting was suggested by Gov. McKeldin, arranged by the State Roads Commission, and attended by the commission, county commissioners, representatives of the B&O Railroad and Western Maryland Railway and Albert Hargreaves of the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

"It concerned the construction of an access road from Route 51 (Oldtown Road) to the proposed site of what we all hope will be the plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. This meeting resulted in certain committments from the county commissioners, State Roads Commission and others which were of vital importance to securing this plant for Allegany County.

"A complete account of the activity of the county commissioners from that date down to the present time and of the public expense to be incurred in connection therewith is being prepared and will be disclosed without delay. We trust this will be the biggest public dividend from any such expense.

"Certain expenses were incurred by the county commissioners and employes in attending sessions of the Legislature in 1953. One of these meetings was a hearing on a mandatory $6,000,000 bond issue bill that would have destroyed the public economy and deprived Allegany County of an alternate method of financing public school construction.

"Another of such meetings resulted in the adoption of a proposal by the county commissioners which was incorporated into the School Bond Act of 1953. The wisdom of these trips and the justification of the expenditures of public funds therefor has been clearly established. The public economy has been preserved.

"The schools are being built under a $3,500,000 construction program financed under State Loan Funds at an interest rate of 1.75%, as compared to the possibility of the use of state funds and at an estimated interest cost of 2.75% to 3% (on bonds which would have been issued). This was done at a total expense cost of $204.12 including a meeting with the State Roads Commission and County Commissioners Association of Maryland.

"Some of the trips have been made with the State Roads Commission, County Commissioners Association and other group meetings being attended on the same day.

In substance the County Commissioners wish to state:

(1) That none of the questioned expense items was incurred except in connection with county business.

(2) That the authority for the allowance of these expense items was either express as above indicated or impliedly necessary and advantageous in the performance of public duties.

(3) That all were approved by the county commissioners on the advice of counsel if questioned, were inspected, audited and approved by the county auditor and by the certified public accountant who examines all county receipts and expenditures for the quarterly and annual reports.

(4) That all are records available for public inspection just as they were made readily available to representatives of the trial magistrates.

(5) That the county commissioners considered each expense as being necessary and incident to improved public administration.

(6) That the county commissioners have established a formula for the payment of travel expenses of six cents per mile plus gas and oil as being fair and resulting in total travel expenses far less than combined bus or rail fares.

(7) That the county commissioners do not now and have never questioned the integrity of the clerk whose "not itemized" account was questioned. These expenses were incurred when the commissioners were present and had personal knowledge of the purpose and extent of the same.

(8) That the present sound financial condition of the county, properly financed school construction program, sound and equitable assessment program, well planned roads program and prospective new industry are the public dividends attributable in a large measure to the meetings, which required these expenses.

"The county commissioners will not engage in a public controversy over the travel expenses of trial magistrates. When the payment of these expenses was discretionary with the county commissioners, they were paid in full, including in addition to mileage expenses, allowances for hotel and meals. This discretion was removed by the passage of Chapter 649 of the Acts of 1953 and payment of these expenses was made a matter of law.

"The county commissioner will follow the law and pay the annual membership dues of members of the State Association of Trial Magistrates and travel expenses to association meetings at the rate of five cents per mile as directed. There is nothing 'discriminatory' in following the law."

Today's Sermonette

the problems of the human race upon any other level than that of sin, and sinnerhood. How difficult for some with their family background, scholastic standing, and personal achievements to admit the presence of sin in their heart. But if the application of the remedy is to be made, there must be an admission of the need. "But without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Hebrews 11: 6). Faith is a requisite, and it is through our viewing of Calvary's scene that we learn the importance of the fact of faith.

The world has produced many seers, and we have known of a few who were saints, but as yet the world has found only one Saviour. It is this singularity that distinguishes His cry "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" from the other clamoring noises of our modern world. In the language of the aggressive merchandiser of today, we suggest, "You have tried the rest, now try the best," Jesus the friend of sinners!"

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 4—(INS)—Another lawsuit for Paul Gregory in connection with "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." Dick Powell first sued Gregory for cutting off his profits as director and taking his name off the program in favor of Charles Laughton.

Now, Wendell Corey is filing suit, claiming Gregory failed to keep a contract. Cory will say that he was promised the Henry Fonda role in the road company of "Caine Mutiny," and on the strength of this he postponed two commitments, one at Paramount and one at Republic, totaling $100,000.

Just a few days ago Wendell received word that Gregory wouldn't use him because, while waiting Wendell was in "Sabrina Fair." Believe me, this is going to be a fight to the finish.

Attractive Ann Robinson, one of the nicest girls in our town, knows it pays to be born lucky. She had an interview with Jack Webb, and quicker than it takes to say dum-dee-dum-dum, he recommended her for the role of the police woman in his movie, "Dragnet."

Ann was so excited she telephoned her mother and asked her to pray that she would be given the part. Well, I can tell her she's as good as in, because Jack tells me he likes her.

Ann was in "War Of The Worlds," and is redheaded, tall, and—naturally—pretty. And, well, if she gets this, she'll surely be on her way!

This is for sure: Ernest Hemingway is one author who says what he thinks he thinks, and this time he says he's going to keep a very close eye on the movie version of "Old Man Of The Sea." He hasn't been too happy in the past the way his stories have been treated on the screen.

What's more, he's got producer Leland Hayward to agree with him, even if it means gambling on the general popularity of the end result. In other and plainer words, Leland has agreed to film the story as closely as possible the way Hemingway originally wrote it.

Already the author has selected the young Cuban boy who will appear in the film with Spencer Tracy. Hemingway, himself a famous fisherman, will do the exciting fishing scenes off the coast of Peru next summer.

Bing Crosby, who in my memory has never given a big party, has taken over the entire Mocambo April 12 for a farewell to Danny Kaye, who goes on a world tour.

It will be a costume party with each guest dressed as his favorite international character. Can't you just see the dozens of King Farouks, Aly Khans, Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs., and Elsa Maxwells!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Lance Reventlow flies east for his Easter vacation to see his mother, Barbara Hutton.

The greatest thrill I have had in years was meeting Sir Alexander and Lady Fleming, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Marcus Rabwin, who gave a dinner in his honor. The great man, who discovered penicillin and saved thousands of lives, is very modest and extremely interesting.

Natalie Wood leads a charmed life. The studio car that takes her to Republic Studio for her TV show, had a head on collision and was completely demolished. Natalie walked away from the wreck without a scratch.

Corinne Calvet, none the worse from her bout with sleeping pills, at the Mocambo with Hyatt Dehn.

Ernest Lehman, who scripted "Sabrina Fair" and "Executive Suite," will be a father for the second time come October.

Many family parties as Chasen's after the confirmation ceremonies at the Church of the Good Shepherd, at which James Francis Cardinal McIntyre officiated.

Two of the children of Charles Correll (he's Andy of "Amos and Andy") were at dinner with their parents. Alan Reed's youngest, Kit, also had dinner with his father and mother and brothers. Other motion picture children confirmed were Patrick Farrow, Timmy Considine, Nancy Sinatra, Jr., Danny Thomas' little girl, Mary Morrison's boy, and John Beck's son.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Are your nerves on edge? Are you a bundle of nerves? Are you nervous as a cat?

You may be sure that if one of those cliches describes you, it is as obvious as though your slip were showing. Nervousness exhibits itself in may a small way, in many an unbecoming mannerism.

How many times a day do you glance at your watch, even though you are perfectly aware of the hour? How many times—during a conversation—do you cross and recross your legs, slip your shoe off and on at the heel, or peel bits of polish from your fingernails? Often? Then, lady, it's time to unwind!

Danger Signs

Nature gives you danger signals, an ache or a pain, when you are catching a cold or coming down with measles. She signals tension or mental fatigue in a similar manner.

You may indicate tension through unconscious facial expressions—wrinkling your forehead, grimacing, or biting your lips. Just habits, you say? Yes, nervous habits!

A multitude of useless motions and futile gestures like these may hint that you are tense: twisting your ring; drumming your fingers on a table or the arm of a chair; pulling out your compact every few moments for self-appraisal; winding a lock of hair around your finger. Interspersing your speech with "ahs" and "ers."

You may try to explain away these oft-repeated symptoms of tension by saying that they recur only when you are bored. But, why are you bored? Is it because your companions or your surroundings are really dull or is it honestly because you aren't relaxed enough to appreciate and enjoy them?

Overcoming Tension

To recognize the manifestations of tension for what they are is to win half the battle in destroying them. When any of these mannerisms take hold, it is time to remind yourself to RELAX. Take it easy. Take more interest in passing talk and activity.

You can't be tense and charming at the same time. Eliminate the nervous gestures that reveal your tension by overcoming the tension itself . . . you will have more energy, more vitality, more charm.

Tomorrow—Footwork for Spring.

TEN SECRETS OF CHARM

You are welcome, free of charge, to the reminder card, TEN SECRETS OF CHARM. It lists ten points to remember as milestones along the road to greater charm. Carry it with you and you won't overlook any of the ways you impress all who come in contact with you. Pilot Dies In Crash At Mexico Farms

Percy L. Ruby Is Killed In Landing Try

John Kreitzburg Seriously Hurt

A local man was instantly killed and his companion was critically injured yesterday afternoon when a former Army training plane struck a tree and plummeted to the ground while coming in for a landing at the Mexico Farms airport.

Maryland State Police said the pilot, Percy L. Ruby, 32, of 106 Park Street, was killed in the crash, and his companion, John W. Kreitzburg, 30, of 412 Maryland Avenue, was seriously injured.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara and Troopers C. H. DeWitt and R. D. Wolford, who investigated with Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the accident occurred about 3:30 p. m. when the private plane lost flying speed and went into a spin.

Dies Instantly.

CAA authorities, State Police said, have been notified, and the Civil Air Patrol Cadets from here are guarding the wreckage of the PT-19 two-passenger trainer which crashed on the William Dolly farm, about two miles south of Cumberland.

Dr. Deming said Ruby died instantly as a result of a fractured skull and other injuries.

He said Holmes Hinkle, Mexico Farms; J. J. Johnson, operator of the Mexico Farms port, and Boyd Jewell, of Cumberland, witnessed the crash and helped to pull Kreitzburg from the plane.

Pilot Guns Motor

They told Dr. Deming the plane was losing altitude as it approached the port and that Ruby "gunned" his engine but was too close to the tree to avert disaster.

The force of the impact sheared the right wing of the plane, which clung to the top of the big white oak tree—one of a clump which was the last barrier before open ground.

The crippled plane then plunged to the ground near the tree, pinning both passengers in the cockpit.

Pulled From Wreck

Kreitzburg, who works for the Western Maryland Railway here, was extricated from the wreckage and was taken to Memorial Hospital, where an emergency operation was performed early last night.

He was first reported as "critical," suffering from fractures of the right arm and leg and a possible fracture of the left leg, but was improving later last night.

Brooke Bodkin, forest supervisor, and a fire-fighting crew were at the site shortly after the crash, and stood by for several hours to guard against the possibility of fire.

Observers pointed out that the plane crashed less than 100 yards from a cleared area.

Hinkle told authorities the plane was making a right-hand approach to the Mexico Farms' No. 1 runway. He said the plane's nose was high, and that it may have lost its flying speed. The pilot, he added, gunned the motor, but apparently was to close to the trees. The plane "hit hard," he said, after it left a wing bearing the identification N 46206 in the treetop.

Neck Is Fractured

Dr. Deming late last night said Ruby's death resulted primarily from a broken neck. He also suffered a skull fracture and a fractured leg.

He said J. J. Johnson, who operates the field, and his son, Floyd, reported that Ruby parked his car at his Mexico Farms hangar and took Kreitzburg for a ride when the latter drove to the port early yesterday.

They reported the plane apparently had enough altitude but that the speed was cut and that the plane went into a side slip.

Guard Against Fire

Witnesses said Ruby had been keeping his plane at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, but had switched its base to the Mexico Farms field recently.

The CAP cadets, in charge of Paul D. DeMoss, were keeping an all-night vigil, guarding the wreckage until it could be checked by CAA officials.

A World War II veteran, Ruby served as a paratrooper in the 82nd Airborne Division. He was a member of Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and of Fort Cumberland Chapter, Disabled American Veterans.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Viola May (Barger) Ruby; two daughters, Nancy Lee and Shirley Jean; his parents, Spencer and Elma (Bennett) Ruby, Chaneysville; two brothers, Sgt. Joseph Ruby, Air Force, Waco, Texas, and Howard, Chaneysville, and a sister, Miss Freda Ruby, Wilmington, Del.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home here.

Plane Hits Tree

The wreckage of an Army surplus training plane is shown after it smashed into the top of an oak tree at Mexico Farms yesterday afternoon, killing the pilot, Percy L. Ruby, 32, and seriously injuring a passenger, John W. Kreitzburg, 30, both of Cumberland. The force of the crash left one wing in the top of the tall tree.

Firemen Name Committees For June Convention

Fire School Plans, Smoker Arranged

Committees were appointed for the county convention at Friendsville June 3 at the monthly meeting of the Allegany and Garrett County Firemen's Association yesterday at Accident.

Twenty of the 31 association fire companies attended yesterday's meeting at the Accident Fire Company hall when preparations were made for the convention in June.

The committees, appointed by W. E. Lawyer, president, are: credential, Charles Crawford, chairman, Delbert Ryan and Charles Frost; auditing, Felix Foote, chairman, Benjamin Callis and Homer Ambrose; parade prizes, John Prichard, chairman, Joseph Stuckey and Cromwell Zembower.

Various reports were read and arrangements were completed for the fire school to be held in Frostburg May 1 and 2 under the sponsorship of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland. All volunteer companies are urged to attend the sessions.

Other matters discussed at yesterday's affair included plans for the county smoker to be held April 24 at Lonaconing at which approximately 750 members are expected to attend.

David Kirk, carnival committee chairman, reported many activities scheduled for the summer.

The next meeting of the association will be held May 9 at Ellerslie Fire Hall.

Minor Blazes Give Firemen Big Weekend

City firemen rounded out a busy weekend yesterday by quenching several minor fires, none of which caused any serious damage.

East Side Fire Company quenched a flue fire at the home of Mrs. Marie Russell, 640 Shriver Avenue, at 8:55 p. m., and was called to the home of Ralph Darrow, 302 North Waverly Terrace, shortly before noon after a plastic-tipped hammer lying on top of a hot air furnace began to smoke.

West Side Fire Company was called to the 1000-block of Braddock Road early yesterday afternoon, and found an incinerator burning, and South Cumberland Fire Company went to Jane Frazier Village at 1:20 p. m. to quench a grass fire.

District 16 Volunteer Fire Company and state forestry workers fought a grass fire in the Millstone section off Oldtown Road from 2 to 4 p. m. Fire Chief Van Malone said the fire was quelled after it had burned over about 10 acres of ground.

Separate fires Saturday destroyed a children's playhouse and caused considerable damage to an unoccupied residence.

East Side Company 4 answered an alarm at 7:47 p.m. at 300 Independence Street. Flames originated in flooring above the cellar. Firemen blamed an "overheated furnace or defective wiring."

A spokesman said Mrs. Betty Meyers had moved furniture into the house, expecting to occupy the premises this week. Damage was confined to the basement ceiling and flooring in the living room.

Board Members Defend Travel Expenditures

Commissioners Reply To 14 Magistrates

Members of the Board of County Commissioners, challenged by 14 trial magistrates to justify their system of paying travel expenditures for county employes, have made public a reply in which they declare the board has limited authority in such matters.

That limitation, declared the seven-page typewritten letter, applies to the travel expenses of magistrates, a point which apparently led the magistrates last week to challenge payments of other officials' expenses.

All of the expenditures cited by the trial magistrates, said the commissioners, are items which are provided for the blanket appropriations in each year's budget. The commissioners declared their powers of discretion cover many other types of expenditures.

But, said the reply, an act of the 1953 General Assembly "established by law" the travel expenses of magistrates, "thereby depriving the County Commissioners of the authority and discretion" in expenses of magistrates.

Provided In Budget

Previously, the letter pointed out, the board had reimbursed the magistrates for expenses incurred in attending a training session at the University of Maryland and meetings of the State Trial Magistrates' Association.

The commissioners also declared that none of the items which the magistrates had asked them to justify had been submitted to the board for specific approval. Rather, they said, these items all were included in the general budget under "Commissioners' Expenses."

Defending these expenditures, the commissioners cited portions of the state laws relating to the handling of county funds, and declared such expenses are justified "as being reasonably necessary in the execution of the powers and duties imposed by law and reflected in the established practice of boards of county commissioners,

Today's Sermonette

And sitting down, they watched him there. But we see Jesus . . . that he should taste of death for every man. Matthew 27:36. Hebrews 2:9.

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday by 2nd Lt. Harold May for the South Cumberland Corps of the Salvation Army. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Facing Forceful Facts

By LT. HAROLD MAY

Luke tells us, "And when they had come to a place called Calvary, there they crucified Him" and St. Paul insists in his first Corinthians that a belief in the death of Jesus Christ is an integral part of the Gospel message. Jesus died: This is a historic fact beyond refutation by the so-called critics of Jesus. Men have said many things about Him, but they do not deny that He lived, nor that He died, if they are possessive of normal intelligence and learning.

Lt. May

The Fact Of God

As we join with the crowd of spectators around the cross of Christ, and we may do so for this event is contemporary with every age, we come to face as a forceful fact the idea of God. In other generations gone by, some of our fathers have been loud and fervent in their denial of God. Those who predicted that the idea of God would not last in the human race, have long since been silenced, and the idea, yea, the fact of God's existence and omnipresence lives on! At the approach of this lovely Lenten season, we wish to go on record as declaring that God is! Men who have benefited by His love and power have come with childlike faith into His presence to pray and seek the answer to the deepest of human problems and needs.

The Fast of Love

As we gaze searchingly into those eyes that pierce from the cross, we must assuredly face the fact of love. Yes, this is a most interesting discovery, for our world of multiple fears, distrust, and horror weapons of destruction it is not unlikely that we might be searching longingly for whatever there is of love in the world. In Christ we have the personification of love. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends...ye are my friends ..." (John 15: 13, 14).

The Fact of Sacrifice

Also forcing itself to our attention is the fact of sacrifice. Very forceful it is, this idea of sacrifice. It was especially current in the minds of all Jews around the cross. In their ideas of God, which came by revelation...."Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (Peter 1:21)...there had always been prevalent the truth of substitutionary atonement. Certainly that one who dies on yonder Cross is making an atonement for sinful men, who are not free enough from defilement to save themselves, and certainly not holy enough to pay for brother human sin.

The Fact of Faith

If He then is the Physician of the soul, there must be an acknowledgement of that diagnosis which He in his omniscient wisdom has made. God has never placed

Second Annual Sports Car Race Set For May 16

Nation's Fastest Among 105 Entries

A score of the fastest sports cars in the nation, piloted by leading amateur drivers, will be among the 105 competitors at Cumberland Municipal Airport May 16, for the second annual sports car racing event here.

Five speed races will top the events scheduled for Sunday afternoon on the 1.6 mile course. The races are sponsored by the Cumberland Lions Club.

Six classes, bringing together the world-famous record-holding British Jaguars and American-powered Allards will highlight the day. Race distances already announced range from 80 miles for the big open classes to 40 miles for the speedy Italian Oscas and English MGs.

Two American "Grand Prix" champions will match skill and speed in the 80-mile finale when Walter Hansgen of Westfield, N. J., in a Jaguar Special and Dr. M. R. J. Wyllie of Allison Park, Pa. in a new $7,000 Jaguar Competition model square off again. In their last meeting Hansgen came off the winner at Watkins Glenn, N. Y. when Wyllie developed clutch trouble. Straightway speeds in excess of 115 MPH will be attained in this and several other Cumberland races.

The largest entry is in the popular MG class (F) where 34 cars from most of the eastern and midwestern sports car centers "dig-out" at the green flag. German Porsches and Italian Oscas and Siatas are entered in three of the five races.

The Cumberland classic is a charity event sponsored by the Lions Club and under the technical direction of the Steel Cities Region (Pittsburgh, Pa. area) of the Sports Car Club of America. All profits are devoted to a better eyesight program for underprivileged children. Last year the Cumberland races netted more than $2,500 for this purpose in spite of heavy rain on race day. Competitors receive no appearance, prize or travel money and in fact often pay a considerable sum for the privilege of participation.

Races begin at 9:30 a. m. Adjacent to the race course is a parking area for 10,000 visitor cars.

Cumberland offers spectators the best vantage point of any airport or road race in the country. Because of a high bank overlooking the entire circuit, viewers can see all of every race instead of the usual "worm's eye view," which is the case when viewing at course level.

The last checkered flag (indicating the end of the day's racing) will drop at about 5 p. m. and by that time at least one race will have been won by a member of the "fair sex". One of the five events in exclusively for women and will feature a return match between last year's winner, Peggy Wyllie (Dr. Wyllie's wife) in a Jaguar, and runner-up Sue Dietrich of Sandusky, Ohio, in a supercharged MG.

Cumberland District Scout Meeting Set

Cumberland District Boy Scout Committee will meet today at 7:30 p. m. in the conference room of the Kelly-Springfield Tire plant, according to H. H. Lowery, chairman.

Lowery added that institutional representatives are particularly urged to attend, and W. T. Allee, district commissioner, announced that group meetings of Scouters and Cubbers will not be held this month.

Farm Safety Week Opens In State

Urges 4-H Groups To Lead Clean-Up

Guy Gienger, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland and a graduate of Flintstone High School, is serving as Maryland chairman of Farm Safety Week.

The engineer has issued an urgent appeal for Maryland 4-H clubs to take active leadership in the Spring Clean-Up Drive.

"There is a strong relationship between a good job of clean-up and fire prevention," Gienger said. "We know this from the records of the National Fire Protection Association. The simple truth is that a clean house seldom burns."

Gienger probably will have some special advice for Allegany County 4-H Club boys and girls. He will be one of the speakers at the banquet Thursday night for the 4-H boys who completed the tractor maintenance program. That affair is scheduled for the Baltimore Pike Fire Hall, according to Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger.

A concentrated effort to remove useless combustible materials that make perfect tinder for any stray spark is a good starting point for a Spring Clean-Up, according to Gienger.

"In the farm home, this means removing old magazines, newspapers, rags and clothing and discarded draperies, curtains and mattresses and broken and discarded pieces of furniture, often stored in attics, closets and basements.

"In the barn, the machine shed and other buildings, it means removal of oily rags, or their storage in covered metal containers. Clean up shavings, old paints and oils, discarded feed bags and similar debris. See that gasoline and kerosene are stored in metal containers, designed for that purpose, not cans or glass bottles," Gienger urged.

Cresaptown Board Members To Be Elected

Officers will be elected by the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association today with the polls being open at the water department office on Craddock Road from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Election supervisors Mrs. Bruce Hutson, chairman, Mrs. Lewis Millholland Jr., and Mrs. Stanley Merritt, said five candidates are seeking three posts on the association board. Each will be named to a two-year term.

They are Herbert C. Heineman, Charles Davis, Wilmer C. Knepper, Riley H. Yocum, John R. Shoupe and Walter Richardson. Shoupe and Richardson are incumbent officials of the association seeking re-election.

Two members of the association who still have a year remaining to their terms are Philip O. Bowman, president, and Joseph Wenrich, water superintendent.

Secretary of the board Martin C. Johnson is not seeking re-election, supervisors stated.

The association will meet following tonight's election to name officers for the next two years.

Installation of officers will be Tuesday, May 4, at the next regular meeting of the association. Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, will be installing officer.

Only those persons residing in the special taxing area who are legally registered on the registration books of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association will be eligible to vote in today's election.

Two Ridgeley Youths Hurt In Auto Crash

Car Hits Guard Rail, Overturns

Two Ridgeley youths were critically injured last night about 6 p.m. when their automobile crashed through a guard rail and overturned at the intersection of West Virginia Route 28 and Route 28-E at Wiley Ford.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were James Arthur Meyers, 16, son of Mrs. Bessie F. Meyers, Carpenter's Addition, who was driving the car, and Richard Brooks, 17, RFD 1, Ridgeley.

Also hurt but not admitted to the hospital were Benjamin Summers, 17, of Ridgeley, Raymond Spencer, 19, also of Ridgeley, who were passengers in the car. Denton Meyers, 14, brother to the critically injured driver, was also a passenger in the automobile but was not hurt, officials said.

Cpl. F. H. Tribett of the Keyser detachment of the West Virginia State Police said witnesses told him the car in which the five Ridgeley boys were riding was traveling at a high rate of speed south toward Fort Ashby when it reached the intersection.

Here the driver apparently lost control of his car, when he attempted to turn back toward Wiley Ford on Route 28E. The automobile crashed through a guard rail on the left side of the highway, dropped into a deep gully, went up the other side and overturned after traveling several hundred feet, Tribett said.

It passed directly in front of another car approaching toward Cumberland, the officer added, and came to a stop on a private road leading to Wiley Ford school.

The victims were taken to Memorial Hospital by ambulance and Meyers underwent emergency surgery late last night. Attaches at Memorial Hospital said he suffered scalp lacerations and a possible fractured skull. His condition was listed as "very critical".

The Brooks boy, also listed as "very critical," had multiple contusions, bruises covering his entire body, and severe chest injuries.

Summers was treated for a head laceration and released while the Spencer youth left the scene of the accident and went to Sacred Heart Hospital by himself, where attaches treated him for abrasions and burns.

No charges were preferred pending outcome of injuries.

Red Cross Asks For Donors Of Blood Today

Collection Center Will Open At Noon

The Red Cross bloodmobile unit will visit Cumberland today and tomorrow for the regular monthly collection of blood for civilian and armed forces use.

This is the first two-day visit to Cumberland for several months. The mobile visited Cumberland for one-day stops in January, February and March and also visited Frostburg, Westernport and Lonaconing for single-day stops in those months.

However, Cumberland must provide donors for a two-day visit this trip, since the major portion of the county's population is here.

Quota 300 Pints

The quota for this two-day visit is 300 pints or 150 each day.

A number of appointments have been made and Red Cross officials last night said they hope all who possibly can will keep their appointments. Volunteer walk-ins without appointments are also welcome and will be needed to meet the quota.

Officials say that Cumberland has been reaching its quota on the past few visits of the bloodmobile, and hopes to maintain its good record.

Demand Increasing

The demand for blood in local hospitals has been increasing, and more physicians are finding more uses for blood and plasma, in helping patients recover more quickly and with fewer complications.

Residents who will donate blood can call the Red Cross office for appointments and transportation to the collection center, in the Eagles Building on North Mechanic Street. The center will open at noon and will remain in operation until 6 p. m.

Hotel Dining Room Popular

Hundreds of Tri-State residents turned up for the formal opening of the new dining rooms of the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday.

The dining area, completed recently at the cost of $90,000, was packed during several hours of the day, and at the buffet dinner served from 2 to 9 p. m.

The dining rooms are under the management of Anton Squillari, who has closed his Anton's Restaurant on North Mechanic Street. The bar will be continued under the management of Bill Crane.

The new Anton Restaurant at the Fort Cumberland will seat 120 in addition to a coffee room counter service adjoining. Ultra modern lighting and air conditioning have been built in to the beautiful new dining salon. New kitchens have been built and there are entrances direct from North Liberty Street, through the hotel lobby and through the hotel bar.

Clear And Cold Weather Expected To Be Continued

Temperatures dipped once again yesterday, with clear, cold weather prevailing throughout most of the Tri-State area, and the Weather Bureau said the sub-freezing weather was expected to continue today.

Following Saturday night's warning to orchardists to look after their peach and apple buds during the night and yesterday, the mercury fell to a low of 25 degrees in Allegany County. Garrett County reported lows of 15 degrees in some spots but no snow or freezing rains fell.

Baltimore chalked up a record low of 29 degrees for this time of year.

Yesterday's high in Cumberland was 44 degrees and the low 25. Humidity reached 61 per cent at 6 p. m.

Local Chess Club Plays Naval Academy

Cumberland's Staunton Chess Club made a creditable showing yesterday in Annapolis when members won six of 14 points in a match with a United States Naval Academy chess team.

Officials said membership in the club, which meets at 124 Springdale Street, is open to all in the area who are interested in chess.

Union Leader Honored

Jack F. Moore, (left) president of the Dairy Workers Union here for several years, is presented an Elks ring by Joseph Garlitz, on behalf of members of the local, while J. H. Stitely of the Cumberland Brewing Company looks on. Moore recently resigned from the Queen City Dairy where he has worked the past 10 years and has taken a withdrawal card from the union, to accept a position as Stitely's assistant at the local brewery. A party was held for the dairymen at the Brewery Thursday.

The Ad Agency Language

In my researches on the curiously inventive (and, in some cases, remarkably expressive) language of the advertising industry, I have confined myself pretty well to Madison Avenue. But, of course, Madison Avenue isn't the whole story. You can find ad men all over the place — Chicago, Milwaukee and, naturally, Hollywood—and, while the general tenor of metaphor is the same, there are certain regional differences which I'm sure you students of language will find interesting.

John Crosby

In Hollywood, for instance, you will encounter the expression: "We were blown out of the tub" which means simply that the agency has lost a client or an account. When you want a junior account executive to handle detail work, you tell the personnel department: "Get a boy to carry the grips." There is a slightly larcenous practice out there (and elsewhere) concealing added charges in production fees which increases the agency take above the ordinary 15 per cent. This is known as "honking a live one." (The "live one" is a client with a fat wallet.) And when a guy fails to make a sale or land a new account, he is said to have "burnt off."

Out in Chicago they have an expression: "Keep your pores open on this one" which means don't do anything hasty. (And that, of course, is the general direction of almost all ad agency talk. The idea is for heaven's sake, be careful. Don't go rushing into anything.) And when you have finally decided the idea is definitely lousy, you "pull the chain on that one."

There is generally, in some of the later Madison Avenue patter, a note of pessimism, if not downright cynicism in their gropings with the spoken word. Take this one, for example, which is a very real example of Madison Avenue: "Let's roll some rocks and see what crawls out." Obviously the boys are not expecting much. In the old days, they used to "mother hen" an idea, or they'd say "Let's incubate this and see what hatches"—and this, with its intimations of maternity, was kind of sweet and touching. Now, they're rolling rocks and you know what crawls out from under those.

Of course, candor is something to be avoided at all costs in the advertising dodge which brought forth this remark from one of the boys, seeking guidance: "How shall we handle this? Do you want to keep anything back or do you want to make it an open door policy?" I don't know what the decision was here but I rather imagine that the "open door policy" didn't make it.

I have here one other example of Madison Avenue prose. I haven't any idea what it means: "I don't think we'll baby that agency any more. We'll just force feed them." As I say, I don't know what it means but I like the idea of an agency being force fed. It's high time.

From one of my spies in Chicago comes words that ad agency-ese is developing what he calls the triple-redundancy. This is the technique of saying the same thing over and over to make it sound more impressive. He swears he heard an account executive tell a client: "We'll send this letter to all physicians, doctors and MD's." The same man was overheard to get up at a meeting, thump the table and say: "We'll put our front foot forward."

To turn to other matters, April is upon us once more which means that I have the wanderlust again. During the next month I shall be exploring some old and new haunts in Paris, Cannes, Venice, Vienna and Seville.

During that time, a roster of very distinguished writers, thinkers and wits will be doing my work for me. Among the guest columnists who will take over—and I hope they're not all too bright—will be Bing Crosby, Robert E. Sherwood, Edward R. Murrow, Fred Allen, Goodman Ace, P. G. Wodehouse, Sloan Simpson, David Selznick, Richard Maney, Steve Allen, Herb Shriner, Peter Lind Hayes, Henry Morgan, Victor Borge, Abe Burrows, and Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding).

Take it away, man.

Daily Bridge Lesson

LURING A BAD MISTAKE

YOU have a chance, once in a while, to make a play which has for one of its main purposes the luring of a bad mistake by an opponent. You may do it by giving him a picture of the situation which is definitely different from the facts, or by merely making him select alternatives while utterly in the dark about the true situation. Sometimes a single play has a triple objective. First, it may work of itself and thereby assure your objective. Second, if it fails, it may induce a slip by one opponent. Third, even if he doesn't come through, his partner may then be tempted to help you.

	♠ 7 6 3 ♥ 10 7 4 ♦ K 9 8 6 ♣ Q 10 3
♠ 10 5 ♥ Q 9 6 3 ♦ A 5 ♣ 9 8 6 4 2	N W E S	♠ J 9 2 ♥ K 8 5 ♦ Q 4 3 2 ♣ K J 7
	♠ A K Q 8 4 ♥ A J 2 ♦ J 10 7 ♣ A 5

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

The game which South got out of this deal depended entirely on help from his opponents at two stages. First of all, East saved it for him by not passing the original 1-Spade, the reopening of 2-Diamonds giving him another chance. Later West came to his aid in the play.

When East put the discouraging 2 on the diamond A opening, West shifted to the club 4, bringing the 10, J and A. Three top spades cleared trumps and the diamond 10 was sent through to the Q. That made two tricks lost, and South saw the danger of one each in hearts and clubs. He needed help from the defense, and his throwing in of East with that diamond finesse, which could have saved his cause if it had worked, now gave that defender his opportunity to be kind.

East was not so geared up, however. If he had returned any club, two hearts could have been discarded on a club and a diamond. Seeing that, East returned a heart instead, the 5, which the Q won. Now, as it happened, a club return could beat the contract. West, however, didn't know that, so chose the heart 9, which brought the 10, K and A. The heart J, diamond 7 to the K, diamond 9 and 8 brought a discard of South's last club, and two spades completed the lucky game.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ Q J 8 ♥ A 8 6 4 3 ♦ A 9 ♣ 7 5 2
♠ K 9 2 ♥ 9 7 5 2 ♦ K 10 8 6 5 ♣ 8	N W E S	♠ 10 6 ♥ Q 10 ♦ J 7 2 ♣ Q 10 9 6 4 3
	♠ A 7 5 4 3 ♥ K J ♦ Q 4 3 ♣ A K J

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

After the club 8 lead to the Q and K, how should South try for his overbid 6-Spades?

Board Members

past and present, in Allegany County and in the other counties of the state."

The magistrates had voiced a specific objection to reimbursement of Supervisor of Assessments Somerville Nicholson and his assessors for their travel expenses.

Assessor Trip Necessary

Pointing out that "assessments of property cannot be made in the Court House and the State Tax Commission will not require local assessors to provide their own transportation without reimbursement," the commissioners said it has been the custom for the board to pay the supervisor and the assessors monthly allowances for the use of their cars. This, they said, is cheaper than the depreciation on a county-owned car.

As to out-of-state trips, the board members said, "the progressive counties of this state are invariably represented at meetings of the National Association of Assessors, not only by their supervisors but by assessors as well. Allegany County is one of the progressive counties of the state and has been represented. The present supervisor is a past president of the national association and his knowledge, experience and ability, particularly in handling industrial assessments, was thus acquired.

The letter, signed by William H. Lemmert, board president, and Commissioners James Holmes and James Orr, declared in part:

"There is one individual trip to the State Roads Commission office in Baltimore which might now be explained. This trip on October 28, 1953 involved a total expenditure of $132.50 for five persons for two days.

"This meeting was suggested by Gov. McKeldin, arranged by the State Roads Commission, and attended by the commission, county commissioners, representatives of the B&O Railroad and Western Maryland Railway and Albert Hargreaves of the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

"It concerned the construction of an access road from Route 51 (Oldtown Road) to the proposed site of what we all hope will be the plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. This meeting resulted in certain committments from the county commissioners, State Roads Commission and others which were of vital importance to securing this plant for Allegany County.

"A complete account of the activity of the county commissioners from that date down to the present time and of the public expense to be incurred in connection therewith is being prepared and will be disclosed without delay. We trust this will be the biggest public dividend from any such expense.

"Certain expenses were incurred by the county commissioners and employes in attending sessions of the Legislature in 1953. One of these meetings was a hearing on a mandatory $6,000,000 bond issue bill that would have destroyed the public economy and deprived Allegany County of an alternate method of financing public school construction.

"Another of such meetings resulted in the adoption of a proposal by the county commissioners which was incorporated into the School Bond Act of 1953. The wisdom of these trips and the justification of the expenditures of public funds therefor has been clearly established. The public economy has been preserved.

"The schools are being built under a $3,500,000 construction program financed under State Loan Funds at an interest rate of 1.75%, as compared to the possibility of the use of state funds and at an estimated interest cost of 2.75% to 3% (on bonds which would have been issued). This was done at a total expense cost of $204.12 including a meeting with the State Roads Commission and County Commissioners Association of Maryland.

"Some of the trips have been made with the State Roads Commission, County Commissioners Association and other group meetings being attended on the same day.

In substance the County Commissioners wish to state:

(1) That none of the questioned expense items was incurred except in connection with county business.

(2) That the authority for the allowance of these expense items was either express as above indicated or impliedly necessary and advantageous in the performance of public duties.

(3) That all were approved by the county commissioners on the advice of counsel if questioned, were inspected, audited and approved by the county auditor and by the certified public accountant who examines all county receipts and expenditures for the quarterly and annual reports.

(4) That all are records available for public inspection just as they were made readily available to representatives of the trial magistrates.

(5) That the county commissioners considered each expense as being necessary and incident to improved public administration.

(6) That the county commissioners have established a formula for the payment of travel expenses of six cents per mile plus gas and oil as being fair and resulting in total travel expenses far less than combined bus or rail fares.

(7) That the county commissioners do not now and have never questioned the integrity of the clerk whose "not itemized" account was questioned. These expenses were incurred when the commissioners were present and had personal knowledge of the purpose and extent of the same.

(8) That the present sound financial condition of the county, properly financed school construction program, sound and equitable assessment program, well planned roads program and prospective new industry are the public dividends attributable in a large measure to the meetings, which required these expenses.

"The county commissioners will not engage in a public controversy over the travel expenses of trial magistrates. When the payment of these expenses was discretionary with the county commissioners, they were paid in full, including in addition to mileage expenses, allowances for hotel and meals. This discretion was removed by the passage of Chapter 649 of the Acts of 1953 and payment of these expenses was made a matter of law.

"The county commissioner will follow the law and pay the annual membership dues of members of the State Association of Trial Magistrates and travel expenses to association meetings at the rate of five cents per mile as directed. There is nothing 'discriminatory' in following the law."

the problems of the human race upon any other level than that of sin, and sinnerhood. How difficult for some with their family background, scholastic standing, and personal achievements to admit the presence of sin in their heart. But if the application of the remedy is to be made, there must be an admission of the need. "But without faith it is impossible to please Him, for he that cometh to God must believe that He is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Hebrews 11: 6). Faith is a requisite, and it is through our viewing of Calvary's scene that we learn the importance of the fact of faith.

The world has produced many seers, and we have known of a few who were saints, but as yet the world has found only one Saviour. It is this singularity that distinguishes His cry "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" from the other clamoring noises of our modern world. In the language of the aggressive merchandiser of today, we suggest, "You have tried the rest, now try the best," Jesus the friend of sinners!"

Ike Back In Capital

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower returned tonight from a weekend in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, where he worked on the television-radio address he will make to the nation tomorrow night on problems, both international and domestic, of the H-bomb age.

Pilot Dies In Crash At Mexico Farms

Percy L. Ruby Is Killed In Landing Try

John Kreitzburg Seriously Hurt

A local man was instantly killed and his companion was critically injured yesterday afternoon when a former Army training plane struck a tree and plummeted to the ground while coming in for a landing at the Mexico Farms airport.

Maryland State Police said the pilot, Percy L. Ruby, 32, of 106 Park Street, was killed in the crash, and his companion, John W. Kreitzburg, 30, of 412 Maryland Avenue, was seriously injured.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara and Troopers C. H. DeWitt and R. D. Wolford, who investigated with Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said the accident occurred about 3:30 p. m. when the private plane lost flying speed and went into a spin.

Dies Instantly

CAA authorities, State Police said, have been notified, and the Civil Air Patrol Cadets from here are guarding the wreckage of the PT-19 two-passenger trainer which crashed on the William Dolly farm, about two miles south of Cumberland.

Dr. Deming said Ruby died instantly as a result of a fractured skull and other injuries.

He said Holmes Hinkle, Mexico Farms; J. J. Johnson, operator of the Mexico Farms port, and Boyd Jewell, of Cumberland, witnessed the crash and helped to pull Kreitzburg from the plane.

Pilot Guns Motor

They told Dr. Deming the plane was losing altitude as it approached the port and that Ruby "gunned" his engine but was too close to the tree to avert disaster.

The force of the impact sheared the right wing of the plane, which clung to the top of the big white oak tree—one of a clump which was the last barrier before open ground.

The crippled plane then plunged to the ground near the tree, pinning both passengers in the cockpit.

Pulled From Wreck

Kreitzburg, who works for the Western Maryland Railway here, was extricated from the wreckage and was taken to Memorial Hospital, where an emergency operation was performed early last night.

He was first reported as "critical," suffering from fractures of the right arm and leg and a possible fracture of the left leg, but was improving later last night.

Brooke Bodkin, forest supervisor, and a fire-fighting crew were at the site shortly after the crash, and stood by for several hours to guard against the possibility of fire.

Observers pointed out that the plane crashed less than 100 yards from a cleared area.

Hinkle told authorities the plane was making a right-hand approach to the Mexico Farms' No. 1 runway. He said the plane's nose was high, and that it may have lost its flying speed. The pilot, he added, gunned the motor, but apparently was to close to the trees. The plane "hit hard," he said, after it left a wing bearing the identification N 46206 in the treetop.

Neck Is Fractured

Dr. Deming late last night said Ruby's death resulted primarily from a broken neck. He also suffered a skull fracture and a fractured leg.

He said J. J. Johnson, who operates the field, and his son, Floyd, reported that Ruby parked his car at his Mexico Farms hangar and took Kreitzburg for a ride when the latter drove to the port early yesterday.

They reported the plane apparently had enough altitude but that the speed was cut and that the plane went into a side slip.

Guard Against Fire

Witnesses said Ruby had been keeping his plane at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, but had switched its base to the Mexico Farms field recently.

The CAP cadets, in charge of Paul D. DeMoss, were keeping an all-night vigil, guarding the wreckage until it could be checked by CAA officials.

Ruby, the dead pilot, had been employed at the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore for some time.

A World War II veteran, Ruby served as a paratrooper in the 82nd Airborne Division. He was a member of Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and of Fort Cumberland Chapter, Disabled American Veterans.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Viola May (Barger) Ruby; two daughters, Nancy Lee and Shirley Jean; his parents, Spencer and Elma (Bennett) Ruby, Chaneysville; two brothers, Sgt. Joseph Ruby, Air Force, Waco, Texas, and Howard, Chaneysville, and a sister, Miss Freda Ruby, Wilmington, Del.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home here.

Plane Hits Tree

The wreckage of an Army surplus training plane is shown after it smashed into the top of an oak tree at Mexico Farms yesterday afternoon, killing the pilot, Percy L. Ruby, 32, and seriously injuring a passenger, John W. Kreitzburg, 30, both of Cumberland. The force of the crash left one wing in the top of the tall tree.

Firemen Name Committees For June Convention

Fire School Plans, Smoker Arranged

Committees were appointed for the county convention at Friendsville June 3 at the monthly meeting of the Allegany and Garrett County Firemen's Association yesterday at Accident.

Twenty of the 31 association fire companies attended yesterday's meeting at the Accident Fire Company hall when preparations were made for the convention in June.

The committees, appointed by W. E. Lawyer, president, are: credential, Charles Crawford, chairman, Delbert Ryan and Charles Frost; auditing, Felix Foote, chairman, Benjamin Callis and Homer Ambrose; parade prizes, John Prichard, chairman, Joseph Stuckey and Cromwell Zembower.

Various reports were read and arrangements were completed for the fire school to be held in Frostburg May 1 and 2 under the sponsorship of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland. All volunteer companies are urged to attend the sessions.

Other matters discussed at yesterday's affair included plans for the county smoker to be held April 24 at Lonaconing at which approximately 750 members are expected to attend.

David Kirk, carnival committee chairman, reported many activities scheduled for the summer.

The next meeting of the association will be held May 9 at Ellerslie Fire Hall.

Minor Blazes Give Firemen Big Weekend

City firemen rounded out a busy weekend yesterday by quenching several minor fires, none of which caused any serious damage.

East Side Fire Company quenched a flue fire at the home of Mrs. Marie Russell, 640 Shriver Avenue, at 8:55 p. m., and was called to the home of Ralph Darrow, 302 North Waverly Terrace, shortly before noon after a plastic-tipped hammer lying on top of a hot air furnace began to smoke.

West Side Fire Company was called to the 1000-block of Braddock Road early yesterday afternoon, and found an incinerator burning, and South Cumberland Fire Company went to Jane Frazier Village at 1:20 p. m. to quench a grass fire.

District 16 Volunteer Fire Company and state forestry workers fought a grass fire in the Millstone section off Oldtown Road from 2 to 4 p. m. Fire Chief Van Malone said the fire was quelled after it had burned over about 10 acres of ground.

Separate fires Saturday destroyed a children's playhouse and caused considerable damage to an unoccupied residence.

South End firemen were called at 11:15 a.m. to the home of Jack Murphy, 218 Arch Street, when a frame structure on a lot behind the building ignited.

East Side Company 4 answered an alarm at 7:47 p.m. at 300 Independence Street. Flames originated in flooring above the cellar. Firemen blamed an "overheated furnace or defective wiring."

A spokesman said Mrs. Betty Meyers had moved furniture into the house, expecting to occupy the premises this week. Damage was confined to the basement ceiling and flooring in the living room.

Board Members Defend Travel Expenditures

Commissioners Reply To 14 Magistrates

Members of the Board of County Commissioners, challenged by 14 trial magistrates to justify their system of paying travel expenditures for county employes, have made public a reply in which they declare the board has limited authority in such matters.

That limitation, declared the seven-page typewritten letter, applies to the travel expenses of magistrates, a point which apparently led the magistrates last week to challenge payments of other officials' expenses.

All of the expenditures cited by the trial magistrates, said the commissioners, are items which are provided for the blanket appropriations in each year's budget. The commissioners declared their powers of discretion cover many other types of expenditures.

But, said the reply, an act of the 1953 General Assembly "established by law" the travel expenses of magistrates, "thereby depriving the County Commissioners of the authority and discretion" in expenses of magistrates.

Provided In Budget

Previously, the letter pointed out, the board had reimbursed the magistrates for expenses incurred in attending a training session at the University of Maryland and meetings of the State Trial Magistrates' Association.

The commissioners also declared that none of the items which the magistrates had asked them to justify had been submitted to the board for specific approval. Rather, they said, these items all were included in the general budget under "Commissioners' Expenses."

Defending these expenditures, the commissioners cited portions of the state laws relating to the handling of county funds, and declared such expenses are justified "as being reasonably necessary in the execution of the powers and duties imposed by law and reflected in the established practice of boards of county commissioners,

Today's Sermonette

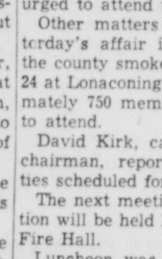

And sitting down, they watched him there.
But we see Jesus . . . that he should taste of death for every man. Matthew 27:36. Hebrews 2:9.

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday by 2nd Lt. Harold May for the South Cumberland Corps of the Salvation Army. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Facing Forceful Facts

By LT. HAROLD MAY

Luke tells us, "And when they had come to a place called Calvary, there they crucified Him" and St. Paul insists in his first Corinthians that a belief in the death of Jesus Christ is an integral part of the Gospel message. Jesus died: This is a historic fact beyond refutation by the so-called critics of Jesus. Men have said many things about Him, but they do not deny that He lived, nor that He died, if they are possessive of normal intelligence and learning.

Lt. May

The Fact Of God

As we join with the crowd of spectators around the cross of Christ, and we may do so for this event is contemporary with every age, we come to face as a forceful fact the idea of God. In other generations gone by, some of our fathers have been loud and fervent in their denial of God. Those who predicted that the idea of God would not last in the human race, have long since been silenced, and the idea, yea, the fact of God's existence and omnipresence lives on! At the approach of this lovely Lenten season, we wish to go on record as declaring that God is! Men who have benefited by His love and power have come with childlike faith into His presence to pray and seek the answer to the deepest of human problems and needs.

The Fast of Love

As we gaze searchingly into those eyes that pierce from the cross, we must assuredly face the fact of love. Yes, this is a most interesting discovery, for our world of multiple fears, distrust, and horror weapons of destruction it is not unlikely that we might be searching longingly for whatever there is of love in the world. In Christ we have the personification of love. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. . .ye are my friends . . ." (John 15: 13, 14).

The Fact of Sacrifice

Also forcing itself to our attention is the fact of sacrifice. Very forceful it is, this idea of sacrifice. It was especially current in the minds of all Jews around the cross. In their ideas of God, which came by revelation. . . . "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (Peter 1:21). . . there had always been prevalent the truth of substitutionary atonement. Certainly that one who dies on yonder Cross is making an atonement for sinful men, who are not free enough from defilement to save themselves, and certainly not holy enough to pay for brother human sin.

The Fact of Faith

If He then is the Physician of the soul, there must be an acknowledgement of that diagnosis which He in his omniscient wisdom has made. God has never placed

Second Annual Sports Car Race Set For May 16

Nation's Fastest Among 105 Entries

A score of the fastest sports cars in the nation, piloted by leading amateur drivers, will be among the 105 competitors at Cumberland Municipal Airport May 16, for the second annual sports car racing event here.

Five speed races will top the events scheduled for Sunday afternoon on the 1.6 mile course. The races are sponsored by the Cumberland Lions Club.

Six classes, bringing together the world-famous record-holding British Jaguars and American-powered Allards will highlight the day. Race distances already announced range from 80 miles for the big open classes to 40 miles for the speedy Italian Oscas and English MGs.

Two American "Grand Prix" champions will match skill and speed in the 80-mile finale when Walter Hansgen of Westfield, N. J., in a Jaguar Special and Dr. M. R. J. Wyllie of Allison Park, Pa. in a new $7,000 Jaguar Competition model square off again. In their last meeting Hansgen came off the winner at Watkins Glenn, N. Y. when Wyllie developed clutch trouble. Straightway speeds in excess of 115 MPH will be attained in this and several other Cumberland races.

The largest entry is in the popular MG class (F) where 34 cars from most of the eastern and midwestern sports car centers "dig-out" at the green flag. German Porsches and Italian Oscas and Siatas are entered in three of the five races.

The Cumberland classic is a charity event sponsored by the Lions Club and under the technical direction of the Steel Cities Region (Pittsburgh, Pa. area) of the Sports Car Club of America. All profits are devoted to a better eyesight program for underprivileged children. Last year the Cumberland races netted more than $2,500 for this purpose in spite of heavy rain on race day. Competitors receive no appearance, prize or travel money and in fact often pay a considerable sum for the privilege of participation.

Races begin at 9:30 a. m. Adjacent to the race course is a parking area for 10,000 visitor cars.

Cumberland offers spectators the best vantage point of any airport or road race in the country. Because of a high bank overlooking the entire circuit, viewers can see all of every race instead of the usual "worm's eye view," which is the case when viewing at course level.

The last checkered flag (indicating the end of the day's racing) will drop at about 5 p. m. and by that time at least one race will have been won by a member of the "fair sex". One of the five events in exclusively for women and will feature a return match between last year's winner, Peggy Wyllie (Dr. Wyllie's wife) in a Jaguar, and runner-up Sue Dietrich of Sandusky, Ohio, in a supercharged MG.

Cumberland District Scout Meeting Set

Cumberland District Boy Scout Committee will meet today at 7:30 p. m. in the conference room of the Kelly-Springfield Tire plant, according to H. H. Lowery, chairman.

Lowery added that institutional representatives are particularly urged to attend, and W. T. Allee, district commissioner, announced that group meetings of Scouters and Cubbers will not be held this month.

Farm Safety Week Opens In State

Urges 4-H Groups To Lead Clean-Up

Guy Gienger, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland and a graduate of Flintstone High School, is serving as Maryland chairman of Farm Safety Week.

The engineer has issued an urgent appeal for Maryland 4-H clubs to take active leadership in the Spring Clean-Up Drive.

"There is a strong relationship between a good job of clean-up and fire prevention," Gienger said. "We know this from the records of the National Fire Protection Association. The simple truth is that a clean house seldom burns."

Gienger probably will have some special advice for Allegany County 4-H Club boys and girls. He will be one of the speakers at the banquet Thursday night for the 4-H boys who completed the tractor maintenance program. That affair is scheduled for the Baltimore Pike Fire Hall, according to Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger.

A concentrated effort to remove useless combustible materials that make perfect tinder for any stray spark is a good starting point for a Spring Clean-Up, according to Gienger.

"In the farm home, this means removing old magazines, newspapers, rags and clothing and discarded draperies, curtains and mattresses and broken and discarded pieces of furniture, often stored in attics, closets and basements.

"In the barn, the machine shed and other buildings, it means removal of oily rags, or their storage in covered metal containers. Clean up shavings, old paints and oils, discarded feed bags and similar debris. See that gasoline and kerosene are stored in metal containers, designed for that purpose, not cans or glass bottles," Gienger urged.

Cresaptown Board Members To Be Elected

Officers will be elected by the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association today with the polls being open at the water department office on Craddock Road from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Election supervisors Mrs. Bruce Hutson, chairman, Mrs. Lewis Millholland Jr., and Mrs. Stanley Merritt, said five candidates are seeking three posts on the association board. Each will be named to a two-year term.

They are Herbert C. Heineman, Charles Davis, Wilmer C. Knepper, Riley H. Yocum, John R. Shoupe and Walter Richardson. Shoupe and Richardson are incumbent officials of the association seeking re-election.

Two members of the association who still have a year remaining to their terms are Philip O. Bowman, president, and Joseph Wenrich, water superintendent.

Secretary of the board Martin C. Johnson is not seeking re-election, supervisors stated.

The association will meet following tonight's election to name officers for the next two years.

Installation of officers will be Tuesday, May 4, at the next regular meeting of the association. Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, will be installing officer.

Only those persons residing in the special taxing area who are legally registered on the registration books of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association will be eligible to vote in today's election.

Two Ridgeley Youths Hurt In Auto Crash

Car Hits Guard Rail, Overturns

Two Ridgeley youths were critically injured last night about 6 p.m. when their automobile crashed through a guard rail and overturned at the intersection of West Virginia Route 28 and Route 28-E at Wiley Ford.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were James Arthur Meyers, 16, son of Mrs. Bessie F. Meyers, Carpenter's Addition, who was driving the car, and Richard Brooks, 17, RFD 1, Ridgeley.

Also hurt but not admitted to the hospital were Benjamin Summers, 17, of Ridgeley, Raymond Spencer, 19, also of Ridgeley, who were passengers in the car. Denton Meyers, 14, brother to the critically injured driver, was also a passenger in the automobile but was not hurt, officials said.

Cpl. F. H. Tribett of the Keyser detachment of the West Virginia State Police said witnesses told him the car in which the five Ridgeley boys were riding was traveling at a high rate of speed south toward Fort Ashby when it reached the intersection.

Here the driver apparently lost control of his car, when he attempted to turn back toward Wiley Ford on Route 28E. The automobile crashed through a guard rail on the left side of the highway, dropped into a deep gully, went up the other side and overturned after traveling several hundred feet, Tribett said.

It passed directly in front of another car approaching toward Cumberland, the officer added, and came to a stop on a private road leading to Wiley Ford school.

The victims were taken to Memorial Hospital by ambulance and Meyers underwent emergency surgery late last night. Attaches at Memorial Hospital said he suffered scalp lacerations and a possible fractured skull. His condition was listed as "very critical".

The Brooks boy, also listed as "very critical," had multiple contusions, bruises covering his entire body, and severe chest injuries.

Summers was treated for a head laceration and released while the Spencer youth left the scene of the accident and went to Sacred Heart Hospital by himself, where attaches treated him for abrasions and burns.

No charges were preferred pending outcome of injuries.

Red Cross Asks For Donors Of Blood Today

Collection Center Will Open At Noon

The Red Cross bloodmobile unit will visit Cumberland today and tomorrow for the regular monthly collection of blood for civilian and armed forces use.

This is the first two-day visit to Cumberland for several months. The mobile visited Cumberland for one-day stops in January, February and March and also visited Frostburg, Westernport and Lonaconing for single-day stops in those months.

However, Cumberland must provide donors for a two-day visit this trip, since the major portion of the county's population is here.

Quota 300 Pints

The quota for this two-day visit is 300 pints or 150 each day.

A number of appointments have been made and Red Cross officials last night said they hope all who possibly can will keep their appointments. Volunteer walk-ins without appointments are also welcome and will be needed to meet the quota.

Officials say that Cumberland has been reaching its quota on the past few visits of the bloodmobile, and hopes to maintain its good record.

Demand Increasing

The demand for blood in local hospitals has been increasing, and more physicians are finding more uses for blood and plasma, in helping patients recover more quickly and with fewer complications.

Residents who will donate blood can call the Red Cross office for appointments and transportation to the collection center, in the Eagles Building on North Mechanic Street. The center will open at noon and will remain in operation until 6 p. m.

Hotel Dining Room Popular

Hundreds of Tri-State residents turned up for the formal opening of the new dining rooms of the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday.

The dining area, completed recently at the cost of $90,000, was packed during several hours of the day, and at the buffet dinner served from 2 to 9 p. m.

The dining rooms are under the management of Anton Squillari, who has closed his Anton's Restaurant on North Mechanic Street. The bar will be continued under the management of Bill Crane.

The new Anton Restaurant at the Fort Cumberland will seat 120 in addition to a coffee room counter service adjoining. Ultra modern lighting and air conditioning have been built in to the beautiful new dining salon. New kitchens have been built and there are entrances direct from North Liberty Street, through the hotel lobby and through the hotel bar.

Clear And Cold Weather Expected To Be Continued

Temperatures dipped once again yesterday, with clear, cold weather prevailing throughout most of the Tri-State area, and the Weather Bureau said the sub-freezing weather was expected to continue today.

Following Saturday night's warning to orchardists to look after their peach and apple buds during the night and yesterday, the mercury fell to a low of 25 degrees in Allegany County. Garrett County reported lows of 15 degrees in some spots but no snow or freezing rains fell.

Baltimore chalked up a record low of 29 degrees for this time of year.

Yesterday's high in Cumberland was 44 degrees and the low 25. Humidity reached 61 per cent at 6 p. m.

Local Chess Club Plays Naval Academy

Cumberland's Staunton Chess Club made a creditable showing yesterday in Annapolis when members won six of 14 points in a match with a United States Naval Academy chess team.

Officials said membership in the club, which meets at 124 Springdale Street, is open to all in the area who are interested in chess.

Union Leader Honored

Jack F. Moore, (left) president of the Dairy Workers Union here for several years, is presented an Elks ring by Joseph Garlitz, on behalf of members of the local, while J. H. Stitely of the Cumberland Brewing Company looks on. Moore recently resigned from the Queen City Dairy where he has worked the past 10 years and has taken a withdrawal card from the union, to accept a position as Stitely's assistant at the local brewery. A party was held for the dairymen at the Brewery Thursday.
